

TENS OF THOUSANDS OF MINERS OBEY LEWIS'S RULE TO QUIT WORK UNTIL CONTRACT IS SIGNED

Peace or War Depends Upon Beck's Views

Paris Prepared to Send Army Across Border if Poland Is Belligerent Over Danzig

Many Believe Foreign Minister Will Adopt Firm Attitude, but Will Leave Door Open

(By The Associated Press)
Europe's rival blocs had their ears turned to Poland and Soviet Russia today (Friday) for clues to the world's immediate future.

Considerable light was expected to be thrown on the situation by Polish Foreign Minister Joseph Beck's reply to Adolf Hitler's demands regarding Danzig and Pomerania (the Polish corridor).

A firm but peaceful stand was anticipated from Poland, whose position was bolstered last night by a reiteration of French support.

It was believed Beck would leave the door open to further negotiations with Germany, at the same time making it clear Poland would yield no territory, especially under threat.

Soviet Plans In Doubt
A big question mark hung over Moscow, however, as other European chancelleries awaited some explanation for the displacement of Premier Maxim Litvinoff.

The Rome-Berlin bloc was stirred by a publication, The British-French alliance, which had been working for Litvinoff to bring Russia into their line-up, was plunged into new uncertainty.

But only Joseph Stalin, who gained a stronger grip on Russia's foreign policy by the note, knew how the Soviet course in international politics might be changed.

Nazis expressed the belief the tone of Beck's reply today (Friday) to Hitler might indicate where Moscow stands toward the London-Paris tie-up.

In the event Litvinoff's ouster resulted from Stalin's unwillingness to back Britain and France in their pledges to Poland, Nazis believed it would show the Polish foreign minister's attitude toward Germany.

The impression grew in Rome that the Polish government, meanwhile, that Premier Mussolini was endeavoring to solve peacefully the Polish-German differences.

Britain, looking to Poland to avoid trouble with Germany, exempted northern Ireland from her conscription scheme to prevent difficulties with Ireland.

Beck May Indicate Where Russia Stands
Berlin, May 4 (AP)—Nazis expressed belief tonight that the tone of Polish Foreign Minister Col. Joseph Beck's reply to Adolf Hitler tomorrow on the Danzig question may indicate where Soviet Russia stands on British-French collective security plans.

Interest in Beck's speech to the Polish parliament was heightened by the replacement of Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign affairs commissar who has been caricatured and assailed bitterly by the German press.

France Reassures Poland of Strong Support in Crisis

Bonnet and Daladier again Declare Readiness for Action

WILL PROTECT DANZIG IN ANY EMERGENCY

Promise to Let Poland Be Sole Judge of Whether To Attack

Paris, May 4 (AP)—France replied to reports she was wavering on her pledge of support to Poland tonight by reassuring the Warsaw government she stood solidly behind all her commitments.

Foreign Minister Bonnet first gave reassurances to Polish Ambassador Jules Lukasiewicz who called to inquire about the reports on the eve of Poland's reply to German demands concerning Danzig and Pomerania (the Polish corridor).

Then Premier Daladier issued a surprise statement which said that France's position "had not varied" and that she was ready to maintain "the future of civilization" he said was at stake in the current European crisis.

Daladier did not mention Poland or Germany by name, but his firm declaration added weight to Bonnet's assurances to the Polish ambassador.

Polish circles here were stirred by French reports indicating that not every Frenchman believed in fighting to defend Danzig.

Those remembering similar French pledges to Czechoslovakia before French-British pressure was put on the Prague government to bow to German demands for the Sudetenland, asked the premier why he made his unexpected statement.

"To correct a false impression that seems to have arisen in Washington and London," Daladier replied.

Bonnet told Lukasiewicz that Danzig was included in the French-British guarantees of aid and that Poland would be the sole judge of whether to resist any attacks on her independence or integrity and that if she did France would be with her.

Informal sources here reported Estonia, Latvia's Baltic neighbor, had given Germany a favorable reply looking toward conclusion of such an agreement.

In Berlin it was said that the treaties with Latvia and Estonia would be signed at the same time, but that the signing would take place in the capitals of each country concerned, instead of Berlin.

Another New Dealer Coming Mrs. Ickes Says
Washington, May 4 (AP)—Mrs. Harold Ickes, 26-year-old wife of the secretary of the interior, said tonight that she expected "another New Dealer" to arrive in the Ickes family in September.

She thereby confirmed her husband's remark to reporters earlier in the day that he had "hopes" of becoming a father.

Mrs. Ickes is the former Jane Dahlman of Milwaukee, a relative of John Cudahy, minister to Ireland. She and the 65-year-old secretary of the interior were married in Ireland in May of last year.

mate, Michael Sullivan, 60-year-old county park worker, and his daughter, Theresa, 11. Both have been hospital patients for several months.

Mrs. Sullivan told Steffes she dislikes James Sullivan, recently returned from a CCC camp, because he refused to build fires for her or do other work around the house and put a "couple of pinches" of poison in his soup.

Mysterious New Giant of the Air To Be Given First Test Next Week

Ship Will Carry 57 People; Range Said To Be 10,000 Miles

San Diego, Calif., May 4 (AP)—Aviation experts looked tonight for some of the mystery surrounding a new type giant craft to be dispelled with initial test flights next week.

The plane is a twin-motored, 50,000-pound flying boat capable of a take-off horsepower of 4,000 and accommodating 52 daytime passengers and five crewmen.

Indicating U. S. navy interest in the craft, the Consolidated Aircraft Corp., manufacturers, withheld performance figures in a brief description released today. There have been almost incredible unconfirmed reports of the plane's capabilities.

The company statement said "although no performance figures may be released, model 31 greatly exceeds the PB's in speed, range and load capacity."

The PB is the giant two-motored flying boat now used by the navy in mass flights from here to Hawaii and the Canal Zone. Although built years ago, its true performance abilities have been suppressed by the navy.

Unofficial analysts of the new ship have estimated its top speed may be almost 300 miles an hour and its range up to 10,000 miles.

Bainbridge Colby Says U. S. Made Mistake in Entering World War

Wilson's Secretary of State Testifies at Committee Hearing

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Bainbridge Colby, President Wilson's post-war secretary of state, expressed the measured opinion today that the United States made a mistake in entering the World War—a mistake he said America must not make again by being "sucked in" as a belligerent when we think we are being neutral.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the former official urged Congress "to reclaim its control" over the policies that might lead to the declaration of war. He opposed further extension of the powers of the president, observing that the executive now has dangerously wide latitude of action.

He contended, too, that any "cash and carry" policy might ruin American export trade in war time and urged that international law be made the basis of future neutrality policies.

Oppose Vandenberg Bill
Meanwhile, administration opposition developed swiftly to a bill introduced today by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) to re-enact without change the expired "cash and carry" section of the present neutrality act.

Harrison Blames FDR and Business For Tax Situation

Says Reductions Can Come Only When Spending Is Curtailed

SAYS C. OF C. ASKS FOR MANY PROJECTS

Says Economies Will Come When People Demand Them

By MAX BOYD

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Senator Harrison (D-Miss), chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, spared neither the administration nor business tonight in a speech warning that there could be no sweeping revision of taxes at this session of Congress nor any net reduction of taxes at any time until federal spending was curtailed.

Addressing the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, he challenged the administration's spending-for-recovery theory by repeating and endorsing this statement:

"You can no more spend yourself into prosperity than you can drink yourself sober."

Scores Business Men

At the same time, the Mississippian declared business men in Chambers of Commerce throughout the country had played a greater part in forcing large congressional expenditures than any other organization with which he was familiar. Declaring they were constantly clamoring for all kinds of projects in their own districts, he said:

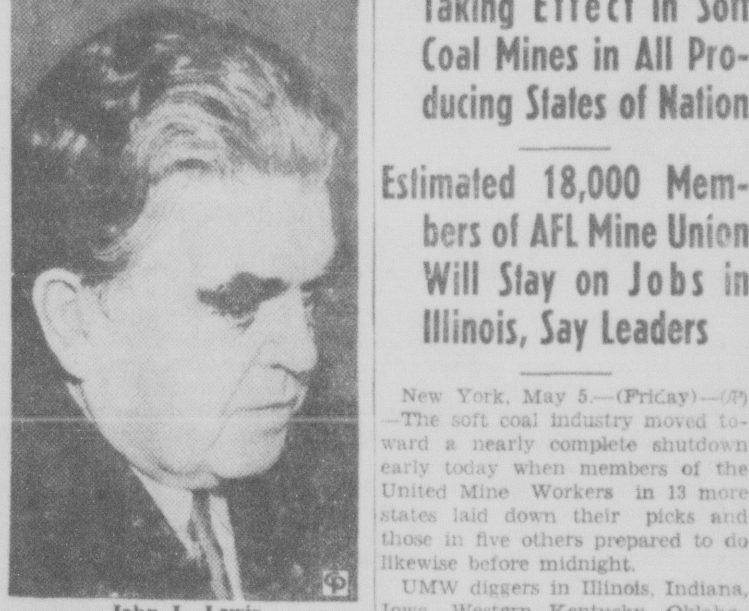

"If economies are to be employed by this government—if expenditures are to be reduced—it will be because such a sentiment has been created back home and because of the demands made upon the Congress for such a policy."

Harrison said he hoped and believed there would be some revision of corporate taxes at this session of Congress that would "encourage private industry to increase employment, add to the purchasing power of the people and stabilize

Stalin in Strong Position to Get Terms He Desires

Ousting of Litvinoff Strengthens Hand of Dictator

Moscow, May 4 (AP)—Joseph Stalin took a stronger grip on red Russia's foreign policy today through the displacement of Maxim Litvinoff, noted internationalist, by Premier Vyacheslav Molotov as commissar of Foreign Affairs.

The shake-up put Stalin's "right hand" on the helm of foreign policy and removed a proponent of collective security who long has been hated by the Rome-Berlin axis.

It stirred the axis to jubilant exclamations and plunged Great Britain and France into new uncertainty.

Kremlin Plans Secret

But only the Kremlin knew how far the Soviet course in international politics might be changed by Premier Molotov's assumption of the foreign commissariat in the midst of British-French attempts to lure Russia in their bloc.

Soviet newspapers announced Molotov's appointment.

Prosecutor Says Judge Lauer Also Smuggled Jewelry

Husband of Convicted Woman Accused in New York Case

New York, May 4 (AP)—An investigation into smuggling begun six months ago by the government on information supplied by a pro-Nazi maid who was discharged by State Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer turned up a postscript today: accusations against the judge himself were presented to legislative committees.

Mrs. Lauer on April 11 was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $2,500 on a plea of guilty that she conspired with Albert N. Chaperau, an international adventurer, to slip into this country on her behalf some $1,833 worth of Parisian clothing and thus save $660 in duty.

In Albany, Governor Lehman today forwarded to the Senate and Assembly Judiciary Committee a letter in which U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill of New York asserted that the long inquiry had uncovered "certain evidence x x x relating to the participation" by Justice Lauer himself in smuggling activities.

"I cannot understand it," Justice Lauer commented.

Cahill reported that in 1937, returning from Europe with Mrs. Lauer, the judge had "omitted" to declare $5,000 worth of jewelry and other articles and subsequently had made penalty and forfeiture payments of $10,400.

Again, the prosecutor asserted, Justice Lauer had "admitted" he was present when Chaperau delivered the smuggled clothing which later landed both himself and Mrs. Lauer in the dock.

The legislative committees arranged to study next Monday the case of the justice—who is paid an annual salary of $25,000.

Her Husband "Kind of Crazy" So Woman Killed Him, She Confesses

Milwaukee, May 4 (AP)—The second of her three husbands was ill "kind of crazy" and her stepson wouldn't work around the house so she poisoned them, the district attorney said Mrs. Anna Sullivan confessed today.

The 50-year-old woman, charged with first degree murder in a war-time case based on the death of her stepson, James Sullivan, 18, on April 28, pleaded guilty late today to first degree murder and was bound over to municipal court for sentence.

The other victim was Fred Rickels, 34-year-old war veteran who died nine years ago.

Fifty Years of Progress Discussed by Dr. Grover F. Powers

Baltimore, May 5 (AP)—The 50 years of life of the Johns Hopkins hospital has covered the period of the greatest advance in suppressing diseases of childhood, Dr. Grover F. Powers of Yale University said today.

"It is during recent years," he told former graduates of the medical and nursing schools, "that the Schick test was developed and immunization against diphtheria extensively carried out; and both morbidity and mortality from the disease have approached the vanishing point in many communities."

62-Year-Old Woman Is Seventh Widow Arrested in Insurance Murder Cases

Philadelphia, May 4 (AP)—A 62-year-old woman chicken store proprietor was arrested late today—the seventh widow taken into custody in the investigation of the eastern murder-for-insurance business.

Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt charged the woman, Mrs. Dora Sherman, with conspiracy to murder. He said she had been involved in the death of her husband, Abraham, by Morris Bolber, held on a murder charge.

Later a man listed as Gaetano Cienati, 45, an insurance salesman, was arrested on a body warrant issued by Judge Harry S. McDevitt charging him with being an accessory in the poison-murder plot. Detective Captain James Kelly said Cienati had been named by Herman Petrillo, convicted poison slayer.

Detectives took a third person into custody for questioning. Meanwhile they planned to arraign Mrs. Sherman and Cienati before Judge McDevitt tomorrow.

Sherman, a 57-year-old antique dealer, died July 1, 1936. A coroner's verdict said he died of natural causes.

Mrs. Sherman denied having had "a cents worth" insurance on her husband and that she ever had been a "customer" of the ring.

Prosecutor McDevitt declared detectives were "not overlooking" the possibility that typhus and other death-dealing germs were sometimes used by the ring. In the trial of one man convicted of murder it was testified he once tried to buy germs and detectives said they had evidence that the ring purchased germs in New York.

Investigators say the ring's toll of deaths in Pennsylvania, New York, Delaware and New Jersey might reach 100.

Police Probe Time Element In Torch Death

Believe Last 30 Minutes of Taylor's Life Holds Clue

Uncertain Whether Maryland Man Was Suicide or Murdered

Rising Sun, Md., May 4 (AP)—State police theorized today the last 30 minutes of Robert Christie Taylor's life held the secret of his strange "torch-death" deep in the backwoods of Cecil county.

Corp. John Novicki and officer Augustus Koste set out to trace the 22-year old truck driver's movements from 3 a. m. Tuesday until his charred body was found two hours later in the smoking wreckage of his automobile.

His blackened fist-watch, found in the debris, had stopped at 3:30, leaving half an hour unaccounted for, the troopers said.

From the tavern to the isolated country road where Taylor's car was discovered, the officers retraced in 21 minutes the route they believed he had driven.

They problem was to settle whether Taylor committed suicide or whether he was murdered.

Coroner Believes It Was Murder. Former Coroner R. C. Dodson, of Rising Sun, assisting Coroner J. B. Slicer on the case, said he believed the truck driver had been clubbed by an unknown assailant who set fire to the car to cover evidence of the crime.

A long iron bar found in the back of Taylor's small coupe, Dodson explained, could have served as the weapon. Taylor's body was so badly burned the autopsy failed to show conclusively the immediate cause of death.

State police took charge of a pistol found under Taylor's body. One bullet had been fired from it, the rest discharged by the heat of the fire police said.

Investigation showed a connection from the dashboard gasoline tank had been opened and the entire contents of the tank apparently drained onto the floor in front of the seat. Officers said the coupling could not have been opened accidentally.

Late today, neither state nor county authorities had been able to establish a satisfactory motive to support either murder or suicide theories, and pending further investigation, Coroner Slicer postponed an inquest.

Stalin in Strong Position To Get Terms He Desires

(Continued from Page One) Molotov's appointment in a few lines and the foreign office said nothing. Foreign observers, in the absence of clues from the press and officialdom, were divided on the possible meaning behind Stalin's move.

Some suggested Russia might invite friendlier relations with Germany or tend toward a neutral course. Others argued Litvinoff's departure was a notice to the British and French governments to delay no longer in accepting the Soviet offer of a flat military alliance.

As for Litvinoff's future, that was a question mark also. Some other men who have been released suddenly from high Soviet posts at their "own request" have disappeared not only from public life but completely.

Because the 49-year old Molotov understands Russian only, some observers thought his direction of foreign affairs, in addition to the premiership, was a temporary measure and that there would be a new commissar later.

Petersburg High Wins Over Keyser High 6 to 5

Petersburg High School played the mean host to Keyser High's baseball team yesterday, defeating the Golden Tornado nine 6 to 5 in seven innings. It was a sewed-up contest that turned into a thriller in Keyser's last turn at bat, when the Golden Tornado finally got to Turley with Relief Pitcher Huffman aiding his own cause with a double that drove in two runs. But Huffman, with the tying run in his trek, was left stranded by his mates and Petersburg passed up its final turn at bat.

Huffman's double was the only extra base hit of the ball game. Score by innings: Petersburg.....239 100 x-6 10 9 Keyser.....100 000 x-5 8 4 Batteries: Turley and Sager; Smith, Huffman (1) and Mayhew.

Diplomatic Circles See Mussolini Trying To Solve Polish-German Dispute

Rome, May 4 (AP)—The impression grew in diplomatic quarters tonight that Premier Mussolini was endeavoring to solve peacefully the Polish-German dispute over Danzig and the Polish corridor.

The Fascist press unanimously admonished Poland not to hold out against Chancellor Hitler and this was a factor in strengthening the diplomats' belief.

Several thought Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano would urge moderation on Germany when he meets the German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, at Lake Como Saturday.

Field Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering arrived at San Remo tonight. It was thought likely he would confer with Italian government and army officials. His visit was announced as a vacation.

Harrison Blames FDR and Business For Tax Situation

(Continued from Page One) the revenues of the government. But he said also that he looked for no sweeping revision at this time.

Chamber Asks Revision. The Southern Democrat spoke to the Chamber a few hours after it had adopted resolutions calling for "thorough" revision of the federal revenue act, repeal of the wage-hour law and fundamental changes in the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

These demands upon Congress were among 26 recommendations submitted by the Chamber's resolutions committee and passed without debate or dissenting vote. Most of the recommendations were for changes in existing governmental policies and were made on the grounds that such steps would end timidity among investors and bring lasting business recovery.

W. Gibson Carey, of New York president of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Company, was elected president of the chamber at a meeting of the new board of directors late this afternoon. He succeeded George H. Davis of Kansas City.

At a press conference after his election, Carey said the things most urgently needed to promote recovery were the development of a sound tax structure, changes in the Wagner Labor Relations Act, and revival of the "free flow of risk capital" by certain revisions concerning the securities commission.

Asked what he considered the most objectionable feature of the wage hour law, whose repeal the chamber proposed, the president said: "The idea of the government controlling the basic economic processes of the whole capital system is that it be kept rigid."

Among the 26 recommendations the Chamber approved were: 26 Recommendations Spending—"Expenditures should be brought down to those for which there is unquestionable justification."

Federal taxation—"There should be immediate modification of those taxes, which, because of excessive rates or because of their hampering effects, are now acting as deterrents to business recovery. There should be elimination of punitive features and of all provisions other than those which have for their purpose the raising of revenue."

Relief—"The chamber endorsed the principle of federal financial assistance in relief expenditures, but recommended abandonment of federally-operated work relief such as the WPA. Federal construction should be let to private contractors by competitive bidding, the resolution said, and the manner of carrying for unemployed persons not put to work on these projects should be left to the determination of states and local governments."

National defense—"American industry appeals to all nations to settle their differences by orderly and peaceful means. It reaffirms its opposition to war. It declared that such measures should only be resorted to as a means of national defense or national integrity. Our nation should be adequately prepared to defend those principles."

U. S. and Great Britain To Exchange Goods Each May Need in Case of War

London, May 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today negotiations between the United States and Great Britain had been started for the exchange of raw materials each would need in case of war.

Under the proposal, which Chamberlain said was made by Washington, the United States would send cotton and wheat here in exchange for British rubber and tin.

Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to London, is handling America's side of the negotiations and was reported to have discussed the project today with Senator Byrnes of South Carolina by trans-Atlantic telephone.

(Senator Byrnes recently outlined a plan by which the United States would barter surplus cotton for rubber and tin held by Britain and other countries.)

Peace or War Depends Upon Beck's Views

(Continued from Page One) press in the six years of Nazi rule. If Litvinoff was dismissed because Joseph Stalin is unwilling to back up Britain and France in their pledges to help Poland defend her independence, Nazis believed, it will show in Beck's attitude toward Germany.

Should the Polish foreign minister be more conciliatory than has been expected, they said they could conclude that Poland felt she was out on a slender limb as a result of relying on Britain for aid against Germany.

Troops May Enter Poland. But an uncompromising tone by Beck, a well-informed diplomat said, might mean the signal for German troops to march against the Free City of Danzig and Pomorze (the Polish corridor) almost immediately.

Nazis also watched what they called the "panic" in Paris and London for signs that British-French collective security plans, regarded here as a diplomatic offensive against Germany, were cracking.

The elimination of Litvinoff from direction of Russian foreign affairs was discussed freely here as meaning, possibly, the crumbling of the British plan. Officials, however, were cautious not to voice too great jubilation until the mystery of the experienced Litvinoff's departure is more fully explained.

Beck to Send Note. Beck is expected to send a note to Berlin answering the fuhrer's termination just a week ago of the Polish-German non-aggression treaty which had almost five years still to run.

Hitler announced the abrogation of the 10-year accord to the Reichstag last Friday in the speech in which he answered President Roosevelt's peace appeal and disclosed his "one and only offer" to Poland for settlement of the Danzig issue.

(The German government the same day made public a note to Poland which, pointed out Poland's exchange of pledges of aid with Britain, accused Warsaw of "arbitrarily and unilaterally" setting aside the Polish-German pact.)

(The fuhrer disclosed he had asked the return of the Free City and a railroad and highway connection with east Prussia under German sovereignty through the corridor in exchange primarily for assurances of protection for Polish economic interests in Danzig and a new 25 year non-aggression pact.)

German military might was in readiness for any eventuality should Beck go further than Nazis believe would be reasonable.

Speculation was current in Berlin over the scheduled simultaneous presence in Italy of Field Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's chief aide; Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Col. Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, chief of staff of the German army.

Goering and von Brauchitsch already are in Italy. Von Ribbentrop was expected to arrive there tomorrow.

Rep. Schugham and Northern Ireland Fish Debate Bill For Larger Navy

Democrat Strongly in Favor, Republican Scores Bill

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Calling for defense preparations "while there is time," Chairman Schugham (D-Nev.) of the House Naval Appropriations Sub-committee today urged approval of a $770,473,000 appropriation to maintain and strengthen the nation's sea forces.

In reply, a Republican, Fish of New York, denounced the proposed fleet expansion as unnecessary, while another, Ditter of Pennsylvania, demanded that Congress determine whether the outlay was for defense or for participation in "the power politics of Europe." Ditter announced, however, that he would vote for the bill.

Many New Warships. The measure, which includes funds for beginning the construction of two 45,000-ton battleships, 21 other warships and 500 warplanes, came before the House after hearings in which Admiral William D. Leahy, the navy's top ranking officer, called for all possible speed in carrying out the rearmament program.

The "prospect of international disturbance in the near future," made haste imperative, he said in testimony made public during the day.

"In view of the rapidly changing alignment of European understandings and alliances," he said, "and the agreements as to community of interests between nations of Europe and Asia, it is essential that America should take steps toward an assurance of security even against possible alliances, and without depending upon assistance from any foreign source."

Scrugham Predicts War. Scrugham brought the bill before the House with a statement that it seems certain foreign nations will go to war "in the not-distant future." The United States, "as a matter of elementary prudence and caution," should "accelerate our defense preparations while there is time to meet eventualities," he added.

Ditter said "Congress should inquire and the country should know what the objectives of our armed forces" are.

"Much has been said which could well have been left unsaid," he continued. "This country wants no war-minded leadership."

Fish Against Offense. Fish insisted that the taxpayers of the country be given a guarantee that the funds in the bill "will be used for national defense and not offense. He charged President Roosevelt with "inflaming the passions of the people." Scoffing at contentions that the fleet program is necessary, he shouted:

"I challenge anyone from the president down to name one nation that has the faintest idea of, or capacity for, attacking the United States of America."

In addition, Fish, following the lead of Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) in a Senate speech this week, volunteered "to stay here all summer if it will keep us out of war."

Japanese Planes Bombard Chinese

Shanghai, May 5—(Friday)—(AP)—A squadron of 45 Japanese warplanes was reported today to have caused from 800 to 1,000 casualties in a raid on Chungking, China's wartime capital, and Chinese feared that with clearing weather the attacks would be repeated almost daily.

The raid, late yesterday, was the second in two days. Wednesday's air raid casualties in the city, which is 1,370 miles up the Yangtze river from Shanghai, were estimated at about 200.

Chinese reported that in the second attack the Japanese bombers centered on military establishments within the city, but that many public buildings and private homes were destroyed. Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, China's first lady, directed relief work.

The invader's bombs were said to have demolished a portion of the city's light plant, leaving half of Chungking in darkness during the early hours this morning.

Candles burned before the doors of hundreds of homes, indicating that at least one resident of each such dwelling had been killed. Scores of coffins were arrayed in the streets. Other victims were covered only by straw matting.

Rep. Schugham and Northern Ireland Is Exempted from Conscription Act

Chamberlain Gives in to Demands of Eamon DeValera

London, May 4 (AP)—Britain exempted northern Ireland today from her conscription scheme to avoid trouble with Ireland and looked to Poland to avoid trouble with Germany.

The conscription change, announced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Chamberlain, represented a victory for Prime Minister Eamon De Valera of Ireland.

De Valera had protested vigorously against extending the measure for six months' military training of 20-year old men to the six counties of northern Ireland, which he hopes to join to Ireland.

"I am anxious that nothing should happen which could be exploited by people who are not friendly to ourselves," Chamberlain said in explaining the change.

Have Faith in Beck. In the Polish-German issue over the Free City of Danzig and Pomorze (the Polish corridor), British officials appeared confident Polish Foreign Minister Col. Joseph Beck in his address tomorrow would be firm, but would point toward a possible peaceful settlement.

More uncertainty existed over the fate of the Anglo-Russian negotiations, designed to add Soviet Russia to the Anglo-French front, because of the resignation of Maxim Litvinoff as commissar of foreign affairs and his replacement by Premier Vyacheslav Molotov.

The view expressed most generally in diplomatic and parliamentary circles was that Litvinoff's repudiation foreshadowed an important shift in Soviet policy.

Fear Further Delay. This, it was feared, might lead to further delay—if not complete collapse—of the Russian talks with Britain and France.

Other quarters were more optimistic, expressing the belief that the change might lead to acceptance of British proposals for a limited form of Russian cooperation with the Anglo-French front and abandonment of Litvinoff's demands for a broad, all-inclusive security bloc.

Regarding Col. Beck's speech, the impression seemed general in both government and diplomatic quarters that the Polish statesman would avoid provocation toward Germany, but instead would offer to negotiate on Danzig's future on a "reasonable basis."

Pittman Aims Views. "I am opposed to it," was the terse comment of Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Vandenberg's proposal. Pittman has proposed the sale of arms and all other materials to belligerents on a "cash and carry" basis. He said that if the Vandenberg bill reached the Senate floor he would seek to amend it to permit cash and carry sales of arms.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.), an administration supporter, also voiced opposition to Vandenberg's move. On the other hand, Senator Borah (R-Idaho) said he thought sentiment was growing in the Foreign Relations Committee for re-enactment of the present law as a compromise settlement of the neutrality controversy.

Senator Bone (D-Wash.), endorsing the Vandenberg plan, told the Senate today that until Great Britain pays her war debts, the people of the United States should not "concern themselves with a situation (in Europe) which may lead them again to the shambles."

Ordered To Quit Germany. Berlin, May 4 (AP)—Miss Barbara Henman, English secretary in the Berlin office of the London Daily Telegraph, received an order tonight to leave Germany within 14 days.

Hugh Carleton Greene, chief of the Daily Telegraph bureau, and five other Britons were ordered yesterday to leave the country in reprisal for the expulsion of Germans from Britain.

The operators, after further discussions, proposed to grant the union exclusive bargaining rights but stood firm against the union shop.

The situation again reaching stalemate, the operators made their last proposal, for exclusive representation and the checkoff.

(Continued from Page One) life of the people of this city is concerned and we expect some cooperation. And if we don't get it we will have to protect ourselves and we intend to do so.

"I serve notice on all people involved in the coal situation—and this is no idle talk—that we will start to equip our furnaces with oil-burning appliances, as we learned a lesson—we cannot depend on any one kind of fuel."

Millions Face Inconvenience. His expression of alarm was caused by the fact that subways here carry millions daily to jobs they could not otherwise reach, and also because of the visitors arriving for the New York World's Fair.

It appeared, meanwhile, that not only the bituminous fields might be thrown out of operation. Concurrent negotiations between the union and anthracite operators had produced no sign of an early agreement.

The old contract, which they have sought thus far in vain to renew, expired April 30 and has been operating on a single week's extension. When that extension ends on the week-end, the hour of decision as to anthracite must come.

The bituminous negotiations conceivably could be resumed at a meeting today of representatives of both sides, but spokesmen for both said privately this was unlikely. There were speculations among them that some form of direct federal mediation might be attempted.

Closed Shop Main Issue. The point of issue that finally broke the bituminous conference revolved around the union, or closed, shop. John L. Lewis, the UMW head, had insisted upon this, saying it was a necessary protection against "raids" by rival unions.

The operators' final proposal—a proposal over which legal questions arose—was that the union be granted not the closed shop but a check-off system collecting dues from both non-union and union miners. This was not accepted by the union.

Weekly Payroll $10,000,000. Operators' spokesmen estimated the weekly wages of all bituminous miners at $10,000,000. Under the union's figures, the walkout, at its peak, will involve 484,000 men—this figure included some 20,000 in Alabama who have been idle with the Appalachian workers because efforts to effect a special agreement as in other outlying areas failed.

The most widespread shutdown of the American coal industry in all history—that from April 1 to Sept. 16, 1922—took out some 500,000 men union sources said.

When the full conference of operators and miners meets tomorrow—some 300 of them—they will be faced, men on both sides said privately, with these possible alternatives:

A finding that further negotiation is useless.

A decision to try other mechanisms in an effort to reach agreement.

The labor department long since entered the dispute to the extent of assigning Dr. John Steelman, head of its Conciliation Department, to come here and do what he could. He was without power, however, to go further than to offer suggestions.

The break-up of negotiations, which have been carried on by eight men reporting to their respective sides, was announced in one sentence by W. L. Robison of Cleveland, chairman of the conference.

Will Confer Today. "This joint sub-committee," he said, "has failed to agree on matters referred to it by the joint conference and has now adjourned and will promptly call the Appalachian conference for a meeting at 2 P. M. tomorrow at which time it will report the disagreement."

Conversations started last March 14, seventeen days ahead of the expiration of the old contract. The union at first demanded a 50-cent-a-day pay increase, over the old rate of $6 in the north and $5.60 in the south, and a reduction, as well, of the work week from 35 to 30 hours.

The operators replied formally with a proposal for a 50-cent daily cut, instead, and retention of the 35-hour week.

Agreement later was reached to renew the old wage and hour scale, with the proviso by Lewis, however, that penalty clauses against illegal strikes and against lockouts be eliminated, or, alternatively, a union shop be granted.

The operators, after further discussions, proposed to grant the union exclusive bargaining rights but stood firm against the union shop.

The situation again reaching stalemate, the operators made their last proposal, for exclusive representation and the checkoff.

King and Queen Kennedy Guests At U. S. Embassy

Eat Baltimore Shad and Virginia Ham; Sail Saturday

London, May 4 (AP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth dined tonight at the United States embassy and Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy served them with such American delicacies as Baltimore shad, Virginia ham, Georgia pickled peaches and strawberry shortcake.

It was the American envoy's farewell to the sovereigns before they sail Saturday for Canada and the United States. Guests included the American ambassador to France, William C. Bullitt, who flew from Paris.

The dinner was unique in at least one way: when the guests sat down the menu before them did not read potage aux champignons, petits pois or pommes nouvelles. In fact, printed in English, it simply read mushroom soup, green peas and new potatoes.

Even at Buckingham palace and ten Downing street they still print menus in French, but "not in my house," announced Kennedy, and another diplomatic precedent was broken.

All nine Kennedy children—altogether for the first time since the ambassador came to London—met the king and queen.

Upstairs in the embassy after dinner, the guests saw a movie and later had a light supper.

Harlan Operators Keep Mines Closed

Harlan, Ky., May 14 (AP)—Peaceful picketing by union miners closed Harlan county coal mines today as state police patrolled highways to avert any disorders.

Operators, who had planned to reopen mines regardless of the "no work" policy of the United Mine Workers of America union pending the outcome of wage-hour negotiations in New York, abandoned the plan when pickets appeared at the mines.

Capt. Carl Norman in charge of 37 state patrolmen here, termed the situation in the southeastern soft coal field "very serious."

At Frankfort, the state capital, Gov. A. B. Chandler said: "We are giving protection to everyone who is entitled to it and if the situation gets out of hand, we are prepared to take further steps."

"I am not going to call out the national guard unless it becomes strictly necessary and if the troops are sent in, they will take the entire situation under their control."

Pickets surrounded the Clover Park mine at Kitz and the Bardo mine on Carbons Creek for several hours while maintenance men were at work in the mines.

New Welcome Pageantry To Be Initiated Today

Washington, May 4 (AP)—President Roosevelt will inaugurate tomorrow a new pageantry of welcome for heads of foreign states when he receives President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua.

The elaborate ceremony will be seen again, in exactly the same form, when King George and Queen Elizabeth of England arrive here next month.

Running to Form

AS A picker of men for important positions, President Roosevelt is not what you could call a howling success. In fact, his inclination to disregard merit and appropriateness in the making of such appointments has proved disastrous to him in many instances. The selection of Black for the supreme court was probably his worst blunder, but that one is fairly typical of many.

In this respect the president continues to do no better fast. His selection of "Uncle Dan" Roper as American minister to Canada runs true to form. This appointment, in the opinion of the New York Herald Tribune, is more to the credit of the president's heart than of his head.

"Mr. Roosevelt has always been loyal to the political hacks who have shown him doglike devotion," that newspaper says. "But it seems a pity that in his desire to provide Mr. Roper with a suitable income at the public expense the president did not see fit to send him as minister to some far and picaresque nation, instead of giving him one of the most important diplomatic posts at his disposal. Other presidents have had political debts to pay. But as a rule they have paid them unostentatiously and without serious damage to the country's foreign service."

"Not that Mr. Roper is not an amiable gentleman, fully deserving of a roost as other lame ducks. But, as in the case of the appointment of Mr. Josephus Daniels to be Ambassador to Mexico, not only does nothing in the record show any special fitness for the job, but there are the most conclusive reasons why such an important post should be given to a trained and skilled diplomat instead of being used as a political plum. The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Roper) is almost sure to be as great a liability as minister to Canada as the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Daniels) has been as ambassador to Mexico."

"While Canada is not, of course, a great world observation post as is Holland or Switzerland today, nor a direct principal in the shaping of world events, as is France or Great Britain, the peculiarly close ties that have always existed between the American and the Canadian people make Canada one of the most important links between the United States and the possible warring nations of the world. The post calls for an outstanding diplomat. It is to be filled, instead, by an obscure lame duck, whose prestige gained little from his years in the department of commerce. Surely some other duckery could have been found in which 'Uncle Dan' could pass his declining years—just as the renowned Josephus could have been better berthed elsewhere than in Mexico City. Or did the president's malicious sense of fun get the best of him, and did he decide that in Canada as in Mexico the United States should be represented by birds of a feather?"

It is, indeed, a pity and a shame that our key positions must be filled as a result of personal vengeance, partisan reward or political favoritism.

No Adjournment!

PUBLIC OPINION endorses the demand by Senators Johnson, of California, and Connolly, of Texas, that Congress remain in session during the summer to prevent the Nation's being "eased" into war.

Only the presence of Congress—which is overwhelmingly opposed to American entanglement in the European mess—in Washington can reassure peace-loving American citizens, many of whom fear that President Roosevelt's course is heading this nation straight for war.

This, then, is a time for congressmen who represent the American people to remain at their posts to steer the American course away from the European brink, away from the dictatorship, censorship, suppression and complete totalitarianization of the United States which would be the inevitable fruit of war under Roosevelt.

Franklin D. Roosevelt has less than two years to go in the White House. It is Congress's duty to remain in session every minute of that time, if necessary, to prevent the disaster which war under Roosevelt would bring to this nation.

Slum Clearance Miracles

PLAYING with slum clearance and "low cost housing" provides the supreme thrill for Washington's career Utopians just now. Out of the city's squalor they are lifting a few families into the unaccustomed luxury of suburban country club additions. For the beneficiaries it is like making a wish and rubbing Aladdin's wonderful lamp. For the rest of the nation it is just more taxes.

The average unit cost of housing these fortunate families is $5,520. The average cost of homes built without Government assistance is $3,384. But at the Green Hills project near Cincinnati the Government spent $17,000 each to "resettle" 767 families on 9,930 acres, or nine acres apiece. From city slum to suburban estate, with elaborate recreation grounds, a sixty-year rent subsidy and exemption in part from taxes makes a modern miracle of social planning. These homes are distinctly better than those occupied by the average upper middle class family.

Slum clearance and better housing accommodations for city dwellers can never be more than a plaything for political sociologists until sensible limitations are accepted, according to Willard K. Smith in Nation's Business. If those responsible for these projects beware trying to be magicians to a favored few they may, within their appropriations, substantially aid a great many persons. A penthouse or a suburban villa for every underprivileged family is a dream, but new low-cost dwellings or rehabilitation of existing quarters are down-to-earth possibilities.

Never Again!

AND NOW a leading Britisher—the Marquess of Lothian—suggests that England make a "token payment" of $10,000,000 a year on the war debt "as evidence that we (the British) admit the debt and mean to settle it."

If and when these tactics are resumed, we believe Uncle Sam should accept the money but refrain from falling for the obvious intention—that of paying the way for other huge war loans in the event of a European conflagration.

It has become perfectly plain during the past two decades that nations which borrow cash for the purpose of fighting do not make good debtors.

Great Britain had virtually repudiated its debt to the United States prior to the present disturbed world conditions. A "token payment" made at this late date would be nothing but a palpable attempt to humiliate America into willingness again to be played for a naive international sucker.

Bossing the Vote

PERVENSITY is a rather deep-rooted quality of the human nature. It had another demonstration the other day in the city primary election at Miami, Fla.

As a nocturnal prelude to the balloting, white-robed men in more than fifty license-shielded cars paraded through the negro section bearing placarded warnings for negroes to refrain from voting. The paraders burned twenty-five fiery crosses and distributed red-lettered cards with the warning: "Respectable negro citizens not voting tomorrow. Niggers stay away from the polls." An effigy bearing a card reading "This negro voted" was hung on a pole near one polling place.

What was the result? The negroes cast the largest vote negroes had cast in the history of the city. Frank J. Kelly, city clerk, said they voted at a fifty-to-one greater ratio than ever before at one negro section precinct.

There was more than perversity in this. Resentment played a big part. Citizens white or black recent being dictated to as to their voting, and they cannot be blamed for their resentment. We have had a lot of that sort of dictatorial bossism all over the country with respect to national and congressional elections. We shall probably have a lot more of it in the next one.

Those dissatisfied with the way things have been going in our national management doubtless hope there will be more of it, for it will tend further to arouse the resentment of the voters.

Alphabetic Confusion

GOVERNMENTAL REORGANIZATION in the interest of economy and efficiency is a fine thing. But recent Washington developments suggest more alphabetic confusion.

For example, there is to be the FSA (Federal Security Agency) which will include the CCC, the NYA and similar units; the FWA (Federal Works Agency) which will coordinate the USHA, the PWA, the WPA, and a new outfit, the BBBPDT (the Public Buildings Branch, Procurement Division, Treasury Department); and the FLA (Federal Loan Agency) under which will be grouped the FHA, the HOLC and the RFC.

What the AC (average citizen) would like to know is how far the FA (federal authorities) are going to carry a process that already has become too baffling for the OM (ordinary mind).

The National Industrial Conference Board reports that taxes took twenty-two cents of every dollar of the national income in 1938 and said this was more than any other year for which records were available. Maybe the boys will make it twenty-five cents this year to get away from the even number.

A leading organizer of the WPA workers' organization admits that he has been a Communist for eighteen years, but sees no harm in that as Communism and Democracy are so much alike he can't tell them apart. The fellow apparently got Democracy and the New Deal confused.

A man may get sore when his name appears in a newspaper but that's nothing compared to his fury when it is left out.

If you would improve your lot in life, don't wait for the government to build a house on it.

Words Will Hurt You

By MARSHALL MASLIN

"Sticks and stones
Will break your bones—
But words will never hurt you"

You remember that old rhyme. When we were youngsters and another child would call us names—"pigeon-toed" or "floppies" or "scurry cat"—we could always stick our tongues way out and announce that sticks and stones would break our bones but words would never hurt us.

We believed that, too. Or we thought we did. Afterwards, long afterwards, we learned that sticks and stones would merely break our bones but words would bruise us forever. The sting of a word—that we spoke or that some one said to us—would never quite go away. No poetics, no liniment, would soothe the injured feelings.

Bit by bit, in triumph or in defeat, we learned the power of words. We learned to use them or we learned to abuse them. . . . And too often we learned to lean too heavily upon words. Once, I remember in shame, one who knew me very well told me that I put too much faith in words. That I thought I could get out of any difficulty merely by the help of words. . . . And that remark brought me up sharply, as if I had been hit on the jaw by Joe Louis or had run solidly into a post in the dark.

Because it was true. I had drifted into that vicious habit. I'd begun to have too much faith in my words, to the neglect of my actions. . . . But I wasn't the only one afflicted with that vice. Others I've noticed since are cursed with it.

They, too, think they can get out of trouble with sweet words, with proclamations of remorse, by opening their mouths and letting persuasive conversation flow over their sins, their errors, their stupidities. When they're backed against the wall, they do not think:

"What must I DO to make amends?"

Instead, they think, "What can I SAY to get me out of this hole?"

They talk little of ACTING and in the end they pay for it!

I know that's true, and perhaps you do, too.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

In his birthday parade Adolf Hitler flashed some new ten-inch guns which no doubt were supposed to throw a scare into any foreign onlookers. But they would be just pop-guns compared to the "Big Berthas" with which the Germans bombarded Paris.

And if you'll just stop to think about it, or run back through the files the actual military damage inflicted on the Allies by these guns amounted to little. They did not break the French morale. They did not, as far as I recall, kill a single soldier. They did not affect the movements of troops or supplies and, in the end, so far as winning the war was concerned, they were merely a monstrous gesture.

It cost $7,000 to fire one shot from a "Big Bertha." Therefore the 367 shells which landed in Paris, in the four months starting March 2, 1918, cost Germany just $2,569,000. Falling on the Church of St. Gervais at St. Protas, when it was crowded with worshipers, a shell caused 125 casualties, killing five American women. Another shell nicked off the cornice of the Madeleine. These occurrences served to arouse the Parisians to fighting pitch, rather than to terrorize them. It probably brought less returns for more money than any big-time gunnery ever attempted.

Just A Burnt Match
Firing the shells, at a cost of $7,000 a shot, was just a burnt match compared with the total cost of building and manning the seven "Big Berthas." These huge war machines of costly and complicated steel carriage-plates and steel carriages weighed many hundreds of tons. The gun barrel itself, with the muzzle straight up, reached as high as a ten-story building and weighed 200 tons.

The life of a gun was about fifty shots. Four were out in the early stages of the bombardment and one exploded. Casting, setting up and operating one of these guns in the Forest of St. Gobain was equivalent to establishing and maintaining a great industrial enterprise.

Dr. Fritz Rausenberger, professor of ballistics, developed the guns at the huge Krupp plant, and they were named after Bertha Krupp, heiress to the great armament fortune. Back of this great futile effort, there was an amazing mobilization of brains and technicians.

It was an alluring adventure in Schrecklichkeit, but it paid no dividends. The guns carried seventy-three miles, the projectile rising to a height of twenty-five miles. Aiming and sighting devices were extraordinarily complex and accurate. It was a marvelous victory for modern technology but not for the German arms. And how much less important it would be today, since the development of the 5,000-mile-range cannon—the bombing plane!

Good Strategy

But, of course, its good strategy to flourish your most horrendous weapons when a potential enemy is standing by, as no doubt Herr Hitler knows well. Both of the axis powers have a marvelous histrionic sense and up to a certain point they are good psychologists. They have gone far in staging themselves as a Grade A menace, and they aren't a bit backward in telling the world about it. Witness Germany's wide open display of its bombing planes to all and sundry.

They want the world to believe that they are a shade tougher than any other gun-toting outfit. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't. In his rhyme about the three sealers—poachers, incidentally—Kipling tells about a gun-sealer that almost came off but failed in the end. Down on the British poaching vessel bore a ferocious man o' war, bristling with guns and cleared for action. The sealer ran like a rabbit, and then the sealer's captain had a second thought. Something had reminded him of a rival poacher, the Straitsund.

Faith, he has rigged her and triggered her with paint and spar. And, faith, he has faked her well. But I'd know the Straitsund's deckhouse yet.

From here to the booms of hell.

So the sealers turned back and knocked the daylight out of the

NOT CONFINED TO EUROPE

Roosevelt Self-Confidence Is Viewed As a Threat to Peace of the Nation

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington May 4 — It is impossible to understand any matter without taking into account the temperament of the person conducting it.

For light on the personality of President Roosevelt, as his personality bears on our relation to what is going on in Europe, there is material in a dispatch written to the New York Herald-Tribune by Mr. Joseph Driscoll. Mr. Driscoll's impressions about Mr. Roosevelt are vivid because he sees the president with a fresh mind, and, needless to say, an intelligent mind. Mr. Driscoll has been a Herald-Tribune correspondent in Europe. Coming to Washington a few weeks ago, he writes about aspects of Mr. Roosevelt's temperament which he will shoot across the Atlantic.

Will Labor Defeat Itself?

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

Popular sentiment appears to be rapidly crystallizing against the internecine warfare being waged between the two great American labor organizations—the Congress of Industrial Organizations headed by John L. Lewis and the American Federation of Labor headed by William Green.

Johnstown and the surrounding territory is now suffering from the effects of this contest to determine which of those two organizations shall prevail, what with the picketing of stores by the C. I. O. to prevent the delivery of merchandise by truck drivers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and the efforts of Johnstown labor organizers representing the A. F. of L. to effect closed shop arrangements on the "dream" highway in Somerset County and force farmers to pay the $15 for membership in the union before applying for jobs on the project.

In the first stated case, the quarrel between the labor organizations directly affects the comfort and convenience of the public and virtually places merchants in bondage to one branch of organized labor. It places the C. I. O. in the anomalous position of favoring truckers not affiliated with any union as against those who are members of their rival, the A. F. of L.

In the Somerset County trouble between the farmers and the A. F. of L. union which is attempting to force them into the organization, the attempt to enforce the closed shop arrangement similarly offends every consideration of fair play. Many of these farmers through whose land the highway will be built made concessions to the state in order that a satisfactory route might be obtained. They are now told that in order to obtain work on that highway they must pay an exorbitant entrance fee to a union in addition to regular monthly dues.

The more one studies the situation, the more one is convinced that the rival branches of organized labor eventually will destroy each other. When public sentiment turns actively against them it will be the end.

Washington May 4 — It is impossible to understand any matter without taking into account the temperament of the person conducting it.

For light on the personality of President Roosevelt, as his personality bears on our relation to what is going on in Europe, there is material in a dispatch written to the New York Herald-Tribune by Mr. Joseph Driscoll. No doubt those cannon in Hitler's parade aren't made of wood. But taking fighting tools as they are, they may represent more showmanship than crushing power—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Correspondents in attendance upon President Roosevelt have reason to remark upon the singular confidence and buoyancy of Mr. Roosevelt in these troubled times. These gentlemen of the press whose duty it is to follow the president gather that no speech by Hitler or Mussolini could upset the country squire who inhabits the White House.

"One explanation of the President's transcendental sangfroid is that he is capable of rising above the ordinary workaday frets and fuses, and that he regards even the most important world affairs in terms of a sporting game in which he is pitted against one or more adversaries, and is supremely confident that he will triumph in the long run—provided they are faithful to the rules of the game and do not cut corners. . . . Even so, one gathers that if all rules were discarded, Mr. Roosevelt would not feel himself unequal to the task of holding his own or better in international combat."

Confidence Is Appealing

"This bubbling, refreshing confidence appeals in a physical, unanalytical sense to one who, like this writer, has been exposed for several years to routine attendance upon the prime ministers of Great Britain. After having seen Neville Chamberlain repeatedly kicked diplomatically without adequate reply, it is stimulating to run across a president who kicks back as hard as he receives, if not a trifle harder. "Aside from the fact that they are both supremely cool, cocksure gentlemen, it is rather odd that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Chamberlain should be both striving to drive the Washington-London chariot."

"Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Chamberlain, as near as I can judge, are not compatible. If they ever met I am sure they would quarrel. Mr. Roosevelt is, above everything else, a man of action. Mr. Chamberlain, in his own way, is a Ghandi apostle of passive resistance."

Accurate and Remindful

I quote these extracts from Mr. Driscoll because they are an accurate and vivid picture of Mr. Roosevelt's temperament. I quote them because also they remind America of something that is vastly and soberly important to us at this time. It is characteristic of Mr. Roosevelt's temperament that he should look upon Hitler in the way of a

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGUE

The sudden discovery and suppression of commercialism in Kansas City conveys a political reek because Kansas City long had taken a mischievous pride in her facilities for vice and in her reputation as the Paris — or worse, the New Orleans — of the Middle West. These phases of life in Kansas City were widely publicized in dispatches more than a year after a study conducted under the aegis of a police officer assigned to that department.

Mr. Higgins is an old collector of the newspaper business who has better say, a field officer in the tactical forces of Commendatore maso Pendergast, the local whose morals and methods though indictable in the U.S.A. him the official commendatore Benito Mussolini. In conference Duce's decoration on Signor dergast the Italian Consul Louis observer that Mussolini rewarded his friends, as remark was taken to mean the race-proud Duce appreciate advancement of certain gifted individuals in the underworld of Kansas City, particularly in the temperamental field of prostitution. Discipline was strict in the monster's men was made hideous by remarkably demagogic pictures presented in the play windows at night, and together, the institution was demonstration of what real could achieve with the sincere operation of a sympathetic government.

Hospitality and Co-operation

Mr. Higgins himself was a shiningly frank and helpful in his position. He phoned below soon after your correspondence checked in and came right offer his hospitality and co-operation. What did your correspondence wish to see in Kansas City new City Hall, perhaps, a municipal theater, both truly dignified in expanse, expense grandeur?

Your correspondent, not that Mr. Higgins had about journalism for politics, said he especially interested in reports Kansas City was a wide-open having gambling rooms open street and uncommonly bold shows, in one of which ladies as waitresses shucked their ments, one by one, as they the regular ten-course table.

Was this true?

Oh, to be sure, it was true Higgins said, and phoned a lieutenant to report for sight duty that night.

"I am not in the newspaperness any more," Mr. Higgins explained, "I am the commander of police."

"But," your correspondent wishing to hedge, "I don't wish to be misunderstood. I want to know about this. Shall I be undergations?"

Immune from Molestation

The police lieutenant was a rough guide who showed your correspondent everything short of murder and explained, as he the system by which the branch gambling houses open under managers and were immune from the slightest molestation patrolmen, except in cases of order, and the main stores their arrangements with a authority, thus protecting the ble cops of the rank and file temptation and trouble. These crap tables of all social of blackjack tables plainly visible the sidewalks, roulette wheel huge kenos rooms in which, all your correspondent saw no nees, the customers were said mainly neighborhood houses.

It was something like the perience of an adolescent le the facts of life in a frank, gestive way. The lieutenant planned all in the most whole and disarming fashion, save that he could not—or would reveal the mystery of the sp life, the method by which the stitutions paid their dues at whom and in what amounts.

In fact, he said they were lowed to operate without merely as public convenience that only intensified the mystery. Governor Stark, of Missouri, startled outrage, has now caught this to be suppressed, and correspondent feels compelled that it took him a long, long to find out something that Mr. Higgins would have been proud to him any time for years past.

Wise To Acquire Dental Plates?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Everybody who wears dental plates gives the same advice to the poor innocent who, tired of eternal dental work, decides to have all his teeth out and be done with it. The advice is the same as Punch's advice to those about to be married, "Don't".

The writer of this column will never be sufficiently grateful to a dentist who begged him almost with tears in his eyes not to think of adopting plates. "I don't know what your problem is," he said; "I am not your official dentist. But whatever it is I think it can be fixed. And any condition is better than wearing plates."

Disadvantages

Among the disadvantages of the "bearing of plates" condition is one that has been pointed out with great clarity by Dr. James B. Costen, St. Louis. It has to do with disturbances of hearing and neuralgic pains in the face. Because very few doctors are yet acquainted with the syndrome and because its cure is so simple, I list once more the symptoms.

The ear symptoms:

1. Impaired hearing, continuously, or with intervals of improvement.
2. Stopping, or "stuffy," sensation in ears, marked about mealtime.
3. Dizziness, mild; again, attacks of prostrating severity, definitely relieved by inflation of eustachian tubes.

Other Symptoms

Neuralgias and irritative symptoms:

1. Headache.
2. Burning sensations in the throat, tongue and side of nose.
3. Absence of saliva or excessive saliva.

The cause of these symptoms is due to the action of the ill-fitting dental plate. They impinge on the eustachian tube, the canal that leads from the throat to the ear.

To prove the diagnosis dentists are now learning that there are a few objective signs, to wit: x-ray pictures of the jaw joints, taken both with the mouth open and shut, and tenderness around the joints when the fingers are placed upon them, combined with the history that the dental plates are so uncomfortable that they are removed except on the most formal occasions.

Replacement of the dental plates with well-fitting one brings about improvement with magical suddenness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

O. N.: "Can you tell me what causes the gums of one's teeth to bleed freely and often?"

Answer — Probably pyorrhoes. They need immediate and vigorous treatment. A dentist should see them. They should be brushed with a very stiff brush, both the front and back surfaces of the teeth-gum margin, putting the brush down parallel with the line of the gum and using a rotary motion of the brush.

N. L.: "I am a girl 23 years of age and for several years when I go out in the winter my fingers of both hands turn pale and feel numb. Please advise me about it."

Answer—The condition is known as Raynaud's disease. It is not dangerous. Avoidance of cold and protection are the only treatments. It is due to spasm of the blood vessels.

Sees Man End Life And Dies from Shock

Milwaukee, May 4 (AP)—A witness to a death plunge in the rotunda of the city hall today died of shock an hour later.

Harry L. Kumelski, 23, dropped within a few feet of Albert Pauly, 42, a milkman, in his leap from an eighth-floor railing.

Kumelski, third person to make the death leap in 11 months, died instantly. Pauly's death was attributed to cerebral hemorrhage.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often
Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood.
Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU NEED YOUR NERVE

MENTAL COURAGE is an essential adjunct of fine bridge. When you are striving by might and main to defeat the other fellow's contract, you need nerve to try plays which, if they fail, may make you a laughing stock of people who don't understand just what you were striving to do. Internally, while the others laugh, you have the satisfaction of knowing you preserved your only chance to beat the declarer, by perceiving a faint possibility which the others perceived could not see.

Here South bid 1-Heart. North answered with 2-Clubs—a very bad bid, in our opinion, since it helps the opponents plan their defense, whereas a heart jump would keep them uninformed. South's second bid was 2-Diamonds, North called 3-Hearts and South 4-Hearts.

Against this West led the spade A, since the other suits had been bid. In the East was Charles H. Goren, who brought the season.

leadership of national championship play to Philadelphia. He gave an encouraging signal with the spade 8, and West continued the suit. Mr. Goren getting the next two tricks. Seeing that a club finesse would win for declarer, also that his own heart Q was almost surely trapped by normal play, he hunted for some device to beat the contract. It could be done if his partner had the heart 9.

To accomplish it, he had to make what is usually one of the game's worst plays—lead a card which declarer can trump in one hand while discarding from the other. On the spade 4, South discarded a club to end the risk of a finesse, but West had the heart 9, which forced the 10, making it impossible to catch the Q and dooming the contract.

Dictators' Speeches Keep Chamberlain from Reading about Romance

London, May 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain complained tonight that the speech-making of the dictators interfered with his favorite pastime—the reading of romantic literature.

Disclosing his romantic side at the 149th anniversary dinner of the Royal Literary Fund, Chamberlain said:

"One of the things about which I have to pick a bone with the dictators is that they leave me so little time for reading. For days together they have been making speeches.

"Often I cannot read for 20 minutes without a visitor coming in and saying 'he has done it again.'"

Chamberlain said he preferred literature "that takes me out of my daily life and away into a world as remote from reality as possible."

"For that reason," he continued, "I always find solace in the great romances, some of them by distinguished living authors. . . . My favorite romances are those of the

Death Valley Goes Romantic

Death Valley, Calif., May 4 (AP)—Music and romance were in the air at Death Valley today. Scotty gave a wedding party at the castle.

"They think they're on Mount Olympus or Mars Hill," the mystery desert prospector said. He stood up with the bridegroom. His "partner", A. M. Johnson, gave the bride away.

Romantic and colorful was the ceremony. It united Joseph Choate and Dorothy Drew. Choate traces his family to his namesake, illustrious New York diplomat and orator of generations ago. The bride claims kinship to William Cullen Bryant and Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Scotty explained: "Mars Hill, that's in Athens. That's where he popped the question last month. Saint Paul uster preach there. It's near Mount Olympus."

Carrie Jacobs Bond, 76-year-old composer, sang her own "Just a wedding for you."

This made the desert rat happy in his $200,000 music room.

The bridegroom is Scotty's lawyer. The bride is a musician and writer.

"An Adoring Aunt" Follows Dr. Myers' Advice and Tells of Her Successes with Sister's Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Inasmuch as I must read so many letters that describe failures or alleged failures, it is most refreshing to receive one like the following signed by Dorothy K. B.

"I am not a parent but an adoring aunt. For this reason, I read your column daily and derive a great deal of pleasure and knowledge from it.

Then she tells how she helped her sister's child of three overcome bed-wetting. First I got a calendar, the kind marked into large squares, and hung it above Judy's bed, then a box of beautiful red stars with gummed backs. The idea was that each morning that Judy awoke with a dry bed she herself was to paste her star into the square containing that date.

Plan Succeeded

"At 11 p. m. and 4 a. m. we took Judy from bed to the bathroom. The plan succeeded very slowly. Sometimes only two days a week saw red stars on the calendar. At last, great day, one whole week of them. Judy was allowed to bring in all her playmates to see the calendar. Of course, lunch was served for them and I bought Judy a new picture book.

"So it went, sometimes badly, sometimes well, but we persisted and finally conquered. We never mentioned failures but praised her successes extravagantly. Mother and Daddy, on coming home always had an extra kiss and word of praise for the little girl with a fresh red star on her calendar. In only four months, Dr. Myers, Judy outgrew the calendar and her good habits are now taken absolutely for granted.

Another Plan

Then this aunt tells of how she quieted Judy late in the afternoon when tired and excitable. "An hour before supper all the little friends were sent home and not allowed to come back. Then Judy and I sat quietly and played the newspaper game. I would point to a big black letter in a headline and say, "That's an A." She pointed and said, "That's an A." In an unbelievably short time Judy knew by sound and sight all the letters. Then, as I prepared the supper, Judy brought her little rocking chair into a corner of the kitchen and sang and chanted poetry and little songs.

"One of the most valuable things I am learning is to say 'Yes' whenever possible when a child asks permission to do something, but, if it is necessary, to say 'NO' and stick to it like glue. I am 23 now and some day I hope I shall have a big family and have a big yard where my sun-browned offspring can play that date.

DEAFENED MAN HEARS Sermon

I heard the minister read Scripture the first time in years, writes Joseph Meredith, Ontario. If you are deafened, bothered by ringing, buzzing head noises, this may be caused or aggravated by imbedded wax or a septic condition. Try the treatment that thousands say has enabled them to hear well again. It is called Otrine, a Vienna specialist's antiseptic prescription. Used since 1905 - over a million packages sold. Safe ingredients as listed in U. S. Pharmacopoeia. Money refunded if not satisfied. Costs only a few cents daily. Ask today about OTRINE. Your druggist has or can get OTRINE for you.

HANES SPORTS AND SHIRTS

I HATE TO DANCE WITH A DAMP SEA!

• The girl friend told me that - and I can sympathize with her. Matter of fact, it's no fun for me to feel like a damp seal - with my top-shirt all clammy and wet from perspiration. That's why I wear a HANES Undershirt!

Gentlemen, you need a blotter when it's hotter. And that's what a HANES Undershirt is! Even though it rests as light as a feather on your chest, it soaks up perspiration with its soft, absorbent knit. Evaporation is even and rapid. You actually feel cooler all over... and your top-shirt keeps a lot neater!

See your HANES Dealer today. He'll show you some HANES Undershirts - and notice how long they are. There's plenty of length to tuck deep inside your shorts and save uncomfortable wadding at the waist. Get HANES Shorts, too - full-cut, color-fast broadcloth. Rep. Bloom Leaves Dinner in a Huff

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Rep. Sol Bloom (D-NY) left a New York state dinner of the United States Chamber of Commerce abruptly and angrily tonight when booing greeted his statement that business men should be glad to pay taxes for the different state dinners, and that man.

He told reporters afterward that he and other congressmen had been "insulted" by being invited to the formal dinner, with their wives, and then being "put on the spot" as to their attitude toward tax revision and other legislation.

Bloom said he thought several persons booed his remarks at the dinner, but spokesmen for the Chamber of Commerce said they believed only one man was responsible. The Chamber spokesmen reported that about 300 members of Congress had taken over national news coverage of the dinner.

the incident at the New York dinner was the only unpleasant one which occurred. They said the dinners were arranged by members of the state Chambers of Commerce.

Soviets Execute Woman Spy; Companion Held

Moscow, May 4 (AP)—Execution of a woman spy who wheeled official secrets out of her victim by pretending she felt neglected was reported today by the Leningrad newspaper Pravda.

Identified only as "a certain woman," she was said to have worried

"military man Z" into blurring out secret information in order to convince her that it was really important work which kept him away from her occasionally.

She wrote the details down later and sent them to the agent of a foreign espionage service, the paper said.

The two were arrested. She was condemned to death and shot. Her dupe pleaded guilty to criminal carelessness and was sentenced to "long term imprisonment."

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

Look for leaf hoppers on roses
By DEAN HALLIDAY

benefits pretty ladies, roses receive lots of attention to protect their beauty from aphids, mildew, black spot and in some cases from busy-body leaf hopper.

Leaf hopper, greatly enlarged, shown in the illustration, as well as leafhoppers feeding on the young rose leaves, where they look like tiny specks. Leaf hoppers are sucking insects. After they have sucked the juices from a rose leaf, you will notice white dots where the leaf's vital juices have been drawn off by hoppers. Where there is a heavy infestation of the hoppers the rose leaves will be left almost dead white in appearance. These sucking insects can only be killed by reaching them with a contact spray, such as a solution of nicotine sulphate and soap, the soap being added to make the spray stick to the leaves. Spray both sides of the leaves, since the leaf hoppers usually congregate on the underside.

Lindbergh Soon To Express His Views

Washington, May 4. (AP)—Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) predicted today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh soon would express publicly his opinions on the need for additional aeronautical research facilities in the United States.

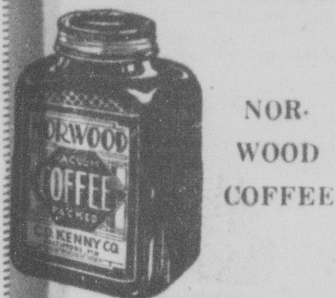

McCarran, who inspected the government's experimental laboratories at Langley Field, Va., recently in company with Lindbergh, said he was satisfied from the flier's comments that additional facilities are needed.

"We ought to have four more Langley Fields if we are to meet the aviation emergency, and I don't mean war," McCarran said. "We need them from the standpoint of commercial aviation."

"Germany has today four and perhaps six laboratories comparable with that at Langley Field, I think. America today is abreast of aviation developments, but if we don't take some steps immediately we are likely to fall far behind."

Enter's Winness Gives Yanks 10-6 Win

Ten Walks Cost Game Although Indians Hit Hard

Young Hurler Obviously Off Form In Ten Inning Tilt

Cleveland, May 4 (AP)—Bobby Feller's old fault, wildness, caught up with him again today and gave the New York Yankees a 10-6 ten-inning victory over the Cleveland Indians although the so-called slugging champions were out of 11-14 for the second straight day.

The Yankees drew an even dozen passes to first and 10 of them came from Feller, who had won three games and lost none prior to today's catastrophe. Four walks, one single and an error supplied New York its four winning runs in the extra chapter.

Except for the second and third innings when he struck out five men, Feller was obviously off form and in addition to the bases on balls he gave up ten hits before being relieved with none out in the tenth.

Georges Selkirk hit his third home run of the season behind singles by Tom Henrich and Charley Keller in the fourth.

Boston Red Sox Top Tigers With Rookie's Homers

Ted Williams Crashes Pair as Boston Comes From Behind

Detroit, May 4 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox came from behind to defeat the Detroit Tigers 7 to 6 today with the aid of two homers by Ted Williams, rookie outfielder, which drove in five runs.

Williams' four-baggers came in successive times at bat, the first in the fourth with Manager Joe Cronin on base. In the fifth inning Jimmy Foss and Cronin both were aided of Williams when he sent the ball out of the stadium. The Tigers were leading 4 to 2 at the start of the fifth, when the Sox tallied five runs altogether.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

ELEANOR stretched the goose-neck lamp a little to the right. Her eyes were tired from the bright light that shone on the black and white of her page. She'd been writing since lunch time and now it was late afternoon.

It was February and twilight came early. A soft ball of snow struck the window beside her and she looked up, a slight frown on her brow. She had hoped to finish the short story she was working on and get it in the evening mail. It was her first offering to a magazine. Phil had urged her not to try short stories for a while, but Phil did not understand her impatience. She could make as much for a short story in a magazine as she was getting from some of her syndicates for an entire novel.

Another ball of snow dissolved against the window pane and she heard the tinkle of Jessica's laughter.

She went to the window. Jessica, dissolved in laughter, was making a show of pulling her father on a sled. It was Phil who had thrown the snowballs.

"Time to call a halt!" he shouted at her. "It's Sunday, Nell."

She went back to her desk. After a few minutes Phil came to the door. There was ruddy color in his cheeks and he had gained a little weight. "You look like a country squire," she told him.

"It's after five," he said hesitantly. "You know we promised the Holbrooks we'd go over for a cocktail before supper. If we get there at seven, we won't be back here before our company comes."

Eleanor's brows were knit over a paragraph that bothered her. "Why don't you go along, Phil? I won't be finished for another hour. You can send one of the Holbrook boys back in the car for me."

The car. Yes, the Parrishes had a car. "It would be nice if we could pick up a little second-hand car, Nell. You wouldn't have to walk a mile to the village for your marketing. Also, you might meet my train."

"Like a good little suburban wife?" she had teased him, and said no more about it.

But, on Christmas morning, she'd led him to what had been an empty garage attached to the house. There the car stood. A shining little coupe with a great card tied to the wheel. It said: "From Mommie and Jessica to Daddy."

At first the old expression had come into Phil's face, but it had faded as Eleanor pointed out the features of the car.

Phil had bought her a violet negligee. The name of an expensive shop was embroidered in a small label on a seam. A month after Christmas when the December bills came in, Eleanor opened the bill from the shop, thinking it had been accidentally addressed to her husband. The negligee had been charged to Mr. Phillip Parrish.

Eleanor stopped at the shop the next time she went to town and paid for it. She never told Phil. He never mentioned it. He had forgotten it.

He said: "Nell, put that away. We've got to go to the Holbrooks. John's put me up for membership in his club and I don't want to do anything to . . . to . . . make things any worse."

"Any worse? Have we done anything?"

He cleared his throat. "No, honey, not intentionally. But Mrs. Holbrook has been to call on you twice and . . . well . . . you haven't returned any calls."

Eleanor put her hands on her hips. If she'd thought that it was a gesture she had picked up from one of her former neighbors, she would have taken them away at once. She said: "Good Lord, Phil! 'Returning calls'! I suppose Jessica and I each ought to return calls and leave cards. Remind me to get her a card case tomorrow."

"When is Rome?" he said, with an attempt at a friendly grin. "Phil, I have work to do. I have a plan for my . . . our future. It doesn't include calls and gossip and making intimacies of my neighbors. When we moved out here, we didn't move into a country club and I'm not going to regulate my life as if it were one. Those women . . ."

"My mother used to say that neighbors who were good neighbors were good friends to have," he said with gentle dignity. "Umm, well, my good neighbors drop in to call on me, knowing that I'm working—unless they're deaf—and then they sit down and talk about losing their maid, or getting a maid, and how they strain peas for Junior. They talk about whether skirts are really ever going to get long and will we go back to wearing waists. And all the time I'm thinking about a paragraph I want to write. Inanities! 'When is Rome!'"

Phil sat down on a corner of her desk, the way he used to when he came to her office before they were married. His eyes searched her face and then he smiled. "You ought to really know about those women, Nell. You'd learn something you might want to put in books some day."

Believes War Avoidable

Rome, May 4.(P)—Rumania's foreign minister Grigore Gafencu, said today his current tour of five major capitals had convinced him Europe would solve its problems without war.

His statement was made after conversations with Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano. Previously he had conferred with government officials in London, Paris, Berlin and Warsaw.

"On one thing I found all agree," Gafencu said, "and that was that war would mean everyone's ruin."

United States apple growers spent approximately $17,500,000 each year in sprays and other measures to control the codling moth—the greatest amount spent for controlling any one crop pest.

Four Countries To Frame a Common Answer to Hitler

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 4./P)
—The foreign ministers of Sweden, Finland, Norway and Denmark agreed tonight to meet next Tuesday at Stockholm to frame a common answer to Adolf Hitler's proposals for a network of non-aggression pacts.

Reports from Sweden said the general impression prevailed that the Scandinavian nations would answer "no" to Hitler's proposals. There were signs that Norway at least favored a rejection of the German proposals on the theory that any pact would be a departure from her traditional neutrality.

The foreign ministers consulted by telephone after receiving identical notes from Berlin and decided upon the Stockholm consultation at the urging of Foreign Minister Richard J. Sandler of Sweden.

Informed observers interpreted the German diplomatic maneuver as intended to forestall any British effort to link the Scandinavian countries by guarantees similar to those accorded Poland, Greece and Rumania.

Public reaction was prompt in Norway.

The Oslo independent newspaper Sjoefarstidende said:

"Nobody in Scandinavia plans to attack Germany. Hitler said he had no plans to attack Scandinavia. A pact, therefore, is superfluous. x x x"

J. C. Hambro, president of the Norwegian Storting (Legislature) said that the government had made the wrong answer to Hitler's query on whether Norway considered herself threatened after President Roosevelt asked Germany and Italy to give guarantees to 31 nations.

The answer should have been, Hambro told the house, that after what had occurred in Europe everyone felt threatened by Germany.

It is not correct usage for a woman to make up in public, even to powder her nose and apply lipstick. If she is in need of a freshening touch, she should go where she will not be seen applying it.

Demand for Wage Increase Next Step, Coal Official Says

Sullivan Says It Will Supplement Closed Shop Plea

Move Planned To Encourage Continuation of Shutdown Is Claim

Charleston, W. Va., May 4 (AP)—The tightening Appalachian coal wage deadlock brought the prediction from a coal source here tonight that the next step of the United Mine Workers will be a demand for increased wages.

The sub-committee of eight operators and miners announced in New York they had disagreed over a proposed new contract to put 338,000 miners back to work and would report at a meeting of the full scale committee tomorrow.

James V. Sullivan, secretary of the West Virginia Coal Association, said:

Refuse Proposal

"My information from New York advises that the mine union led by John L. Lewis has declined to accept the modified proposal to make the United Mine Workers the exclusive bargaining agent for employees and employers in the Appalachian coal area.

"It is expected, when the scale committee meets Friday, that Lewis will supplement an appeal for the closed shop, which would give him a monopoly of mine labor, with a demand for increased wages.

"By doing so he will seek to allay the sentiment among the miners to end the useless labor controversy he provoked and encourage them to continue the suspension which resulted from his failure to renew the former contract."

Union Spokesmen in New York

Spokesmen for the United Mine Workers were in New York with the union's policy committee and were not available for comment.

More than 100,000 West Virginia miners have been idle since April 1 when the old contract expired.

Reports had been current about the coal fields for several days that a settlement was imminent but the news from New York was of a pessimistic nature and few sources here believed the deadlocked negotiators would get together, unless there is direct federal intervention.

Sullivan in his statement said reports to his office showed a "decided trend of sentiment" among miners to return to work. He added:

Operators Willing

"Operators advise they are willing and have been ready since April 1 to renew the former contract for a period of two years and operate the mines under the same terms and conditions of the old wage contract.

"All business and industry in West Virginia is dependent on the continued operation of the coal mines. Even the state and local governments rely upon the revenues from coal and related industries. Our reports show unanimity of opinion in opposition to making further concessions to Lewis. If Lewis is to be crowned as America's dictator the free mountaineers of West Virginia will not wear the yoke."

Hits Wagner Act

Sullivan contended that in "his refusal" to open the mines the UMWA chieftain "is expectant that the maladministration of the Wagner act will continue and sustain his position."

"The present confusion in the industry is due to this lopsided legislation," the association secretary declared. "West Virginia operators have been inclined to continue their labor relations with the United Mine Workers but there is doubt today that a majority of the mine workers want the Lewis union to represent them. The present controversy indicated the necessity for revision of the Wagner law, and Congress should act without further delay."

Uncertainty Supplants Hope in W. Va. Coal Fields

Charleston, W. Va., May 4 (AP)—An attitude of disappointment and uncertainty supplanted a feeling of hope tonight in West Virginia, where one-fourth of the state's business depends on the coal mines.

Reports from New York that the Appalachian wage sub-committee was in disagreement brought pessimistic comment from several sources and predictions there would be a complete breakdown in negotiations unless there is direct federal intervention.

Horse Tramples 73-Year-Old Man

Meyersdale Church Sex- ton Seriously Injured in Farm Accident

Meyersdale, Pa., May 4.—A 73-year-old Meyersdale church sexton was reported recovering today from injuries received Tuesday when he was knocked down and trampled by a horse and run over by a manure spreader on a farm near here.

Wenzel hospital attendants said that the man, Hiram Beck, of Olin-ger street, suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and multi-ple bruises and contusions. His con-dition was regarded as satisfac-tory.

Mr. Beck, sexton of Zion Luth-eran church, was injured as he assist-ed his son, Herman Beck, at his farm near Hay's Mill. The aged man was helping load a manure spreader when one of the horses at-tached stripped his bride and start-ed to run away.

Mr. Beck ran around in front of the horse in an attempt to stop him, but was knocked down and trampled, and the spreader also passed over his prone body.

Mrs. Peter Felker, aged 60, suf-fered a severe laceration of the chin and other injuries when the car she occupied crashed into a truck here Tuesday night. Attendants at Wen-zel hospital, where she is a patient, said she was also suffering from shock.

Mrs. Felker's chin was gashed when she was thrown against the windshield by the impact. She was riding in a car operated by her son-in-law, Peter Deist, headed north on Beachy street, when it col-lided with a laundry truck driven by Paul Lint, which was entering Beachy street from Seventh street. Deist and Lint escaped unhurt.

Damage to the truck, a new ve-hicle, was estimated at $200, while damage to the Deist car amounted to about $100. Motor police have not yet fixed the responsibility for the accident.

Charleston, W. Va., May 4 (AP).—Agriculture Commissioner J. B. Mc-Laughlin said today West Virginia's exhibits are among the outstanding ones at the New York World's Fair.

kins said at Washington that "there is hope."

For most of the week, miners, business men and others had con-fidently expected announcement of an end to the month-old shutdown. The general belief had been the latest operators' proposal would bring agreement.

Operators' spokesmen, including Secretary J. V. Sullivan of the State Coal association, contended a majority of West Virginia min-ers were willing to return on the basis of the old Appalachian con-tract.

None of the 100,000 union miners has worked since the old contract expired April 1.

Railroads, wholesale and supply houses, small merchants and others have reported a steadily declining business. The prospect of further stagnation caused apprehension, particularly among small business men. The State government also has suffered through loss of taxes during the shutdown. There were no comments as to whether any mines would attempt to reopen in case negotiations end finally without a new agreement.

Hit-and-Run Kills

Two Little Girls

Greensburg, Pa., May 4.—A speeding green sedan late today struck and killed two little girls and disappeared after out-distancing a pursuing motorist.

Coroner H. A. McMurray said witnesses told him the victims, Mary Decker, 9, and her sister, Ruth, 13, were walking off the paved highway facing traffic. Their hands were filled with violets, which were scattered for 75 feet beside the road.

The girls were daughters of William Decker, a WPA worker of Derry Township. They had gone to a store for lunch meat for their father, picking the flowers as they walked.

Another "Guest" Found At Lily Pons's Home

Norwalk, Conn., May 4.—Opera singer Lily Pons's second "uninvited guest" in a week promised Judge Paul R. Connery in city court today that he would go home.

The jurist told Louis M. Brucker, 27, who called himself "secret operative X3," he had the choice of serving three months in jail on charges of breach of peace and disorderly conduct, or returning so

Philadelphia "by tomorrow morning."

"I'll go home," said Brucker.

He was found wandering about the Pons's estate yesterday, a week after Arthur Casper, a California machinist, was discovered by servants smoking a cigar inside Lily's home where he had come to "get acquainted."

Casper is in a Bridgeport jail where he has until Saturday to decide whether he wants to serve a year there and pay a $200 fine or go west.

Sense European Situation Lowers Leading Issues on Stock Exchange

Threatened Shut-Down of Coal Mines Also Alarms Traders

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, May 4 (P)—New clouds in the European scene, combined with a threatened shut-down of part of the nation's soft coal mines, put brakes on the stock market and leading issues developed highly irregular tendencies in the close.

The speculative skies were not entirely beclouded, however, and many buying came into the list as it was hoped that Congress would get busy on business tax reduction. Last week's freight losses were up more than seasonally. The Associated Press average of issues was up 1.1 of a point at 117. Transfers amounted to 663,380 shares against 744,300 the day before.

Retaining gains of as much as a half or more were U. S. Gypsum, C. Penn., Union Pacific, Pathe, General Electric, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Allied Chemical and others. Moderately in arrears were Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse, General Electric, Douglas Aircraft, Pullman, Morris, Du Pont and Loft. Off slightly in the curb were Lockheed, United Gas and Columbia Oil. U. S. Gas, American Gas & Electric, and a major fraction and Gulf Oil.

'Rolling Westward' and 'Shadows Over Shanghai' Showing at Embassy

Ten minutes after completing Monogram's "Rollin' Westward," Barbara Stanwyck in the Embassy Theatre, Tex Ritter, singing star of the film, left from location on an extensive personal appearance tour which will carry him throughout the deep south.

Ritter finished the film on his birthday, January 12. A surprise party was given for him at lunch time, with a birthday cake baked by none other than pretty Dorothy Fay, leading lady of the film. The picture finished about 10 p. m., and in ten minutes, Tex was on his way south in his brand new red trailer, gift of Scott Dunlap, Monogram production chief.

Away from the studio until March, Tex will visit theatres in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Illinois, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, and Georgia. With him are four members of his troupe, "Tex Ritter's Musical Tornadoes."

Returning to the studio in March, Tex will immediately go to work on "Elk Valley Round-Up," his sixth Monogram film.

"Rollin' Westward" is the story of the fight between the cattle ranchers and the homesteaders for land in the early west. Outstanding in the cast are Charles King, Dorothy Fay, Hank Worden, and of course White Flash, Tex's wonder horse.

The second feature is the action drama "Shadows Over Shanghai," starring James Dunn and Ralph Morgan. In addition to the two features you will see the tenth chapter of the serial "The Spider's Web."

an unique and gorgeous setting will reveal what the well-dressed girl will wear this summer. The Society Ramblers will play for the occasion and the entertainment will be new to Cumberland theatregoers.

ly Wilson, traveling with the coach as shot-gun guard. One by one the passengers board the stage; there is Lucy Mallory, going to join her army officer husband before she becomes a mother; Mr. Feacock, a clerical-looking whiskey drummer; Doc Boone, a diplomatic doctor; the mysterious Hatfield, a notorious gambler; and Dallas, played by Claire Trevor, an unfortunate lady of the town who is being forced to leave by the members of the law and order society. This heterogeneous group is joined at the outskirts of the town by Banker Getwood, with the funds of his bank nesting in his heavy valise, and a few miles further on, by the Ringo Kid, played by John Wayne, a young fugitive from justice who is on his way to Lordsburg to settle a feud of long standing.

Thrown together by the exigencies of stage coach travel, this strange assortment of passengers soon finds itself involved in a series of dramatic adventures. Lucy's child is born enroute. Dallas and Ringo fall in love. Finally, as the stage is crossing a plateau, it is attacked by a ferocious band of savage Apaches. This scene of the Indian attack, which furnishes the climax of the film, is one of the most thrilling sequences to be seen on the screen for many seasons.

"Nazi Spy" Film Made Behind Locked Doors
"Confessions of a Nazi Spy," the sensational Warner Bros. picture coming to the Liberty Theatre tomorrow, represents a complete reversal of Hollywood precedent in more ways than one.

In the first place the motion picture producers in the past have avoided controversial subjects like the plague. But Warners could hardly have chosen a subject packed with more potential dynamite than the spy picture.

Then, contrary to all precedent, they literally filmed the picture behind locked doors. No one not directly concerned with the production was allowed on the set. This rule was rigidly adhered to, with no exceptions made for executives of the company or members of the press.

Ordinarily, studios are anxious to announce the casts of their pictures. That's showmanship and good advertising, for every name added to a cast means additional fans at the box office. After the first ten principals had been chosen for "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," however, Warners clamped down on all casting news and announced that the rest of the players would be known by number instead of name.

Simply a precautionary measure, the studio announced. Still another unusual behind-the-scenes feature of the production involved the script. Invariably a studios anxious—some even demand—that all players know their lines from beginning to end before a picture starts.

The starfish has an eye in each of its five arms, so can see in all directions.

'Union Pacific' Stars Stanwyck, Joel McCrea

Barbara Stanwyck in a role completely different from any she has previously attempted, and Joel McCrea, as the character strongly reminiscent of the one he portrayed last season in "Wells Fargo," are co-stars in the romantic leads of "Union Pacific," Cecil B. De Mille's grand-scale interpretation of America's first transcontinental railroad.

Although the popular Miss Stanwyck has played roles as varied as Middle Western farm-woman, New England factory wench and Park Avenue debutante, her Mollie Monahan in "Union Pacific," which Paramount will show for one week at the Strand Theatre starting tomorrow, marks something totally new in the Stanwyck repertoire. She is a daring warm-hearted, fiery girl of the West, the daughter of the "U. P.'s" first engineer, the postmistress of "end of track" and little sister of the husky railroad builders. She is equally at home outwitting Western sharpshooters, comforting the homesick Irish laborers, battling Indians on the warpath or engaging in high-powered romance.

Mollie's romantic interest in "Union Pacific" is one Jeff Butler (played by the handsome McCrea), a brave and reckless trouble-shooter, whom the Washington government has assigned to help keep order along the right-of-way. The two meet at "end of track," the gaudy, bawling settlement that moves ever westward with the railroad.

A dozen other popular Hollywood players will be seen in equally unusual roles in De Mille's production. Akim Tamiroff, the roistering Russian actor, is "Fiesta," a rowdy Mexican railroad cop who brings his own kind of law and order to the West at the point of a bullwhip. Lynne Overman holds up the comedy end of the picture as hard-as-nails fur-trapper and pioneer, Brian Donlevy is the sharper who is hired by financiers to sabotage the project.

A special added attraction Saturday, also Monday and Tuesday at 8:15, is Martin's "Fashion Promenade." Twenty lovely models in

Thrilling Film Comes to Town

"While New York Sleeps," the second of the 20th Century-Fox Roving Reporter series comes to the Garden Theatre today with Michael Whalen and Chick Chandler again playing those sleuthsome newshounds who made their bow in "Time Out for Murder".

The story is packed with thrills and humor and the boys are not averse to taking a little romance with their work. Pretty Jean Rogers, who appeared in the earlier film, is again their chief romantic headche.

In this second thriller, the Roving Reporters become involved in a series of bond messenger murders and get themselves in a classic spot by breaking a murder story before it happens—and then finding the "victim" murdered a second time!

But Whalen and Chandler carry on gallantly—even with fair Jean jailed as a suspect and the police on their own trail—and, after a series of thrill-packed adventures, track down the murderer and solve the mystery.

Also at the Garden is Buck Jones in the Western film, "The Stranger From Arizona."

Romance, Adventure, Thrills in "Stagecoach"
A chapter out of the making of the west was unveiled last night when Walter Wanger's "Stagecoach" opened at the Maryland Theatre. This new production, an epic of frontier life and courage, concerns the adventures of a band of men and women in the days when America was young. The production co-stars Claire Trevor and John Wayne, with prominent roles played by Andy Devine, Louise Platt, George Bancroft, Donald Meek, Tim Holt, Thomas Mitchell and John Carradine.

The picture opens at the Overland Stage is about to leave Tonto for Lordsburg. Driving it is Buck Rickabaugh, who is accompanied by Cur-

They don't want this picture to be seen. They tried to prevent its being made...because it dares to call a swastika a swastika! But it was our American duty to make it! Now it's your American privilege to see it!

Ordinarily, studios are anxious to announce the casts of their pictures. That's showmanship and good advertising, for every name added to a cast means additional fans at the box office. After the first ten principals had been chosen for "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," however, Warners clamped down on all casting news and announced that the rest of the players would be known by number instead of name.

Simply a precautionary measure, the studio announced. Still another unusual behind-the-scenes feature of the production involved the script. Invariably a studios anxious—some even demand—that all players know their lines from beginning to end before a picture starts.

ly Wilson, traveling with the coach as shot-gun guard. One by one the passengers board the stage; there is Lucy Mallory, going to join her army officer husband before she becomes a mother; Mr. Feacock, a clerical-looking whiskey drummer; Doc Boone, a diplomatic doctor; the mysterious Hatfield, a notorious gambler; and Dallas, played by Claire Trevor, an unfortunate lady of the town who is being forced to leave by the members of the law and order society. This heterogeneous group is joined at the outskirts of the town by Banker Getwood, with the funds of his bank nesting in his heavy valise, and a few miles further on, by the Ringo Kid, played by John Wayne, a young fugitive from justice who is on his way to Lordsburg to settle a feud of long standing.

Thrown together by the exigencies of stage coach travel, this strange assortment of passengers soon finds itself involved in a series of dramatic adventures. Lucy's child is born enroute. Dallas and Ringo fall in love. Finally, as the stage is crossing a plateau, it is attacked by a ferocious band of savage Apaches. This scene of the Indian attack, which furnishes the climax of the film, is one of the most thrilling sequences to be seen on the screen for many seasons.

"Nazi Spy" Film Made Behind Locked Doors
"Confessions of a Nazi Spy," the sensational Warner Bros. picture coming to the Liberty Theatre tomorrow, represents a complete reversal of Hollywood precedent in more ways than one.

In the first place the motion picture producers in the past have avoided controversial subjects like the plague. But Warners could hardly have chosen a subject packed with more potential dynamite than the spy picture.

Then, contrary to all precedent, they literally filmed the picture behind locked doors. No one not directly concerned with the production was allowed on the set. This rule was rigidly adhered to, with no exceptions made for executives of the company or members of the press.

Ordinarily, studios are anxious to announce the casts of their pictures. That's showmanship and good advertising, for every name added to a cast means additional fans at the box office. After the first ten principals had been chosen for "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," however, Warners clamped down on all casting news and announced that the rest of the players would be known by number instead of name.

Attorneys Clash At Death Curve Damage Trial

Accident Victim Says He Still Suffers From Bad Dreams

Cumberland's so-called "death curve" went on trial yesterday in Circuit court.

The curve, situated at the summit of Washington street hill, was denounced as "dangerous" by witness after witness as trial of a $10,000 damage suit against the city began before a jury.

The plaintiff is Milton Turney, a 19-year-old messenger boy of Oakland, who was seriously injured last fall when the car he occupied crashed into a pole on the curve. He seeks the damages from the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland on the ground that the accident was caused by the city's negligence in failing to grade and curb the street properly.

Attorneys Clash Frequently

The trial, which is expected to go to the jury late this afternoon, was marked by frequent clashes between City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett, for the defendant, and former City Attorney Lewis M. Wilson, for the plaintiff. Each interposed objection after objection to the other's questions, and each noted exception after exception to the court's rulings.

The spectators who crowded the courtroom during the criminal trials were noticeably absent yesterday, but many younger members of the bar watched the case with interest.

Chief witnesses for the plaintiff yesterday were the plaintiff himself and Stanley Stark, also of Oakland, driver of the car involved in the mishap. Both insisted that the car was moving slowly when it struck the pole, contending that it seemed to be "pushed over" and against the curb.

Nearby Residents Testify

The plaintiff sought to bolster the claim, however, with testimony of Cumberland residents concerning the curve's dangerousness and its "previous record." Two of them live on the curve and testified that they had "repeatedly" petitioned City Council to take action to make it safe for motorists.

They were Robert G. Yancey, of 711 Washington street, an insurance agent, and Clarence Lippel, of 709 Washington street, an attorney.

Both expressed the opinion, over the emphatic objections of Mr. Heskett, that the curve was "not safe." Both told, too, of their efforts to get City Council to do something about it.

Mr. Wilson sought unsuccessfully to introduce testimony by the two men showing that Commissioner Harry Irvine had termed the curve an "engineering mistake" at a meeting of Council.

Irvine's Remarks Ruled Out
Associate Judge William A. Huster sustained Mr. Heskett's objections. Mr. Wilson noted exceptions.

Said Mr. Heskett, "Mr. Irvine has roared up and down City Hall about this—and about other things. Statements made by him—or other members—in the course of a discussion should not bind City Council."

Mr. Heskett cross-examined the witnesses carefully as to their knowledge of warning markers at the approach to the curve and also as to the exact grade of the curve.

Many more than a dozen accidents occurred on the curve during the year preceding the one in which Turney was hurt. Mr. Lippel testified. He was permitted to answer the question, however, only after a prolonged argument between counsel as to its admissibility.

Accident "Every Week"
"There was at least one accident a week—and in some weeks, there were two or three," Mr. Lippel declared. He set a dozen, he said, as an "absolute minimum," but was sure there were "many more" than that.

Mr. Lippel and Mr. Yancey also told of their observations early on the morning of Nov. 6 last year, when the crash at issue occurred. They said the road was dry on the crown but "damp" near either curb.

They declared that the car appeared to be badly damaged, the bumper badly bent, the windshield out, and the dash caved in.

"Expert" Testifies
Another Cumberland citizen to take the stand to declare that the curve, as constructed, is "unsafe" was Herbert A. Dye, of 128 Union street, an employee of the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction company. He said he formerly lived on Braddock road and had traveled Washington street "hundreds of times" en route home from work. He had one accident on the curve, he declared.

The city attorney suggested that the curve couldn't be so dangerous if Mr. Dye had negotiated it safely hundreds of times and had had only one accident on it.

But Mr. Dye vigorously disagreed. "I'm an expert on that curve," he argued. "I always took great pains to go around there just right."

Pressed further on cross-examination, he finally declared, "You can creep over a dangerous spot when you know it's there."

Rigorous Cross Examination
Stark, the driver of the crash car, was subjected to a rigorous cross-examination by Mr. Heskett, much of it over the repeated objections of Mr. Wilson. But the youth was not to be shaken by it. He spoke calmly and slowly in a low voice.

Both he and Turney said that they left Oakland about 12:30 a. m. on the morning of November 6 to come to Cumberland to visit Stark's aunt, whom he named as Mrs. Charles Smith.

They arrived in Cumberland shortly after 3 a. m., they declared,

TOURISTS ACCOMMODATED—This sad scene from Allegany high school's Senior Class play shows how Mother Crosby and Aunt Phoebe feel after discovering that they have driven their family out of house and home by taking in too many tourists. and went to the Camden street address where Mrs. Smith was supposed to live. When they arrived there, they declared, they found the house partially torn down.

Stark said his mother had told him that his aunt might have moved to Braddock road and that they then went in search of the new address. They failed to locate the house and continued to drive out Braddock road to the Six Mile house and back to the city through the Narrows on U. S. Route 40.

Drank Coffee
After stopping at a Narrows service station, where they got gas and coffee, they drove down into Cumberland and were en route back to Braddock road to search again when the crash occurred, according to their testimony.

Stark said that they left Oakland an hour after he got off from work at 11:30 p. m. Sunday was his only day off, he asserted.

Mr. Heskett questioned the youth sharply concerning the aunt as he was planning to visit.

The lad said on cross-examination that his aunt was "35 or 40" years of age and had "six or seven children."

The oldest child was "22 or 23," he added.

Both boys asserted emphatically that neither had anything to drink.

Claims Non-Drinker
"I don't indulge in alcoholic beverages" was Stark's reply.

He descended part of the Washington street grade in second gear, Stark said, and shifted to high gear shortly before he reached the curve.

He said he couldn't explain just how the accident happened. He was driving slowly, he declared, when he felt "something pull strongly to the right." The car went up on the curb then and crashed into the pole, knocking him unconscious, he testified.

Turney's testimony was substantially the same as that of Stark.

Suffered Severe Injuries
In addition, however, he told of the injuries suffered in the crash and their results. His injuries included, he said, fracture of the cheek bones, and multiple bruises and lacerations about the body. He added that he has lost weight, has frequent bad dreams, is extremely nervous, and has head pains at intervals.

Dr. Charles C. Zimmerman testified as to the youth's injuries and treatment.

The plaintiff is expected to rest his case this morning.

Mr. Heskett is assisted in the defense by Attorney Harry Stegmaier.

Building Steamed Up, Firemen Get Call

Fire trucks rolled through downtown streets last night because a vacant building did nothing more than "let off a little steam."

The building was the old Daily News building on Baltimore street, where a steam pipe had been cut. The mist filled the building, began seeping out the windows.

A passer-by saw what he thought was the beginning of a big downtown fire. He gave the alarm.

Firemen from the Central and West Side stations aired the building, notified the proper authorities, and went home again.

Angry Bees Invade Citizen's Home, Sit in Chair--Now Citizen Can't

No bee has a right to invade a citizen's home and lie in wait for him in his best easy chair.

But that's what a bee did to a heretofore contented gentleman out on Grand avenue. And the heretofore contented man, like Ferdinand, was suddenly transformed into an alarmist and came storming into City Hall yesterday.

"Things have come to a pretty pass," the alarmist stormed to the first person he encountered in City Hall. "What happens? I come home. I eat. I sit down in my easy chair to read the paper. And I get stung. I get up and decide it's just my imagination. So I sit down again. And I get stung all over again. Right in my own house."

Millions of Bees
The alarmist then shed further enlightenment on the matter of the bee which invaded his castle. He splattered that bee all over the living room. But millions remain in the vicinity of the old fire house in South Cumberland, millions of buzzing, angry little insect pests.

It seems that two gentlemen in that vicinity own the bees who refuse to stay in their own back yard. According to the man who swarmed into City Hall, those pesky bees fall on boxwood housewives when the front wheel went into a ditch as he was rounding a curve on Thomas street.

Sergt. Raymond R. Johnson investigated the mishap, but placed no charges against Grimm. Speelman was released from the hospital after being treated.

Motorcycle Runs Down Deaf Man on Sidewalk
A 62-year-old deaf man was treated at Allegany hospital yesterday afternoon after a motorcycle got out of control and struck him as he was walking on the sidewalk.

The man, Carl Speelman, 705 Virginia avenue, suffered contusions about the back and both legs when knocked down by the machine operated by Howard A. Grimm Jr., 524 Montreal avenue. Grimm said the motorcycle went "haywire" when the front wheel went into a ditch as he was rounding a curve on Thomas street.

Sergt. Raymond R. Johnson investigated the mishap, but placed no charges against Grimm. Speelman was released from the hospital after being treated.

Claim Pedestrians Attacked
According to the one-man committee who appeared at City Hall, the bees not only invade homes but also attack pedestrians on the street, driving on them in mass formation. They even fly into passing cars in order to get in their dirty digs, he declared.

"I," continued the alarmist, "am not the only person who has been stung. A number of ladies in the community have also been stung."

Cumberland's History and People Reflected in Homes Exhibition

Sturdy houses inhabited by sturdy people—that was the impression a spectator gained last night at the public library where Allegany Historical Society members examined a display portraying Cumberland housing since 1793.

Although the exhibit prepared by Attorney F. C. Hendrickson does not carry the display to its 1939 conclusion by displaying examples of up-to-date dwelling structures, it is interesting to note the gradual change from crude structures to grandiose and then back again to simpler, homier models that mark the present-day trend.

All in all, the old homes impress a spectator has most interesting but not exactly the type of structures one would want to live in nowadays. A conglomeration of architectural styles, many of those sprawling dwellings bring up the thought that electricians would have cursed plenty trying to wire such structures.

Beauty Aids Few

The women who lived in some of the earliest models must have been curious looking persons, judging the matter from the 1939 slant, one thinks. Rectangular affairs, they were built of logs chinked with mortar and were certainly not adapted for the cold cream and cosmetics era of today.

But as Mr. Hendrickson points out, the people who lived in these homes were independent, rugged folks who did for themselves. When they needed bricks they didn't buy them. They made them. And the matter of milady's red face and red hands was probably of no particular moment as long as she could cook, sew, scrub, knit, weave and even handle a rifle if the occasion arose.

As shown in the exhibit, the housing development in the Queen City progressed to the sprawling, homey-looking structures that lack the neatness of the Colonial type homes, but provided more room.

Later Homes Ornate

From that period, they progressed to the really ornate affairs that will always be a puzzle to the moderns. These homes have plenty of personality with their cupolas, additions, and efforts at the grandiose, but one can't help thinking of the yards and yards of wasted space and pointless corners and alcoves.

The houses of an era are a pretty good description of the type of people who lived in them. These houses of the Victorian period tell a wordless story of hard working, proud men and equally proud women; of folks who are beginning to rise in the world and who appreciate the fact that they are somebody and that their name means something in their community.

Although many classicists have termed these structures vulgar and unspeakable architectural monstrosities, they stand for something in American development.

Then, the trend starts going back to the more simple type structures, but this time simplicity is made more striking, dignified, and also more comfortable and homelike.

Three Homes Compared
One of the most interesting examples in the display features three homes of Morris Rosenbaum. The first is a plain faced structure where he was born in 1880 on Frederick street. The second is a more pretentious, rambling affair on Washington street which he occupied until 1928.

The third and last house shown is the handsome English Manor House in the Dingle into which he moved after 1928. This house has simpler lines and is actually more striking than the former home which strove for the same effect but missed due to the temper of the era.

Another interesting picture is that of Martin Rizer's home built in 1764 on South Mechanic street and was originally known as the Black Horse Tavern. In this tavern, Lafayette and Washington sipped a glass or two on several occasions. And it was here that treaties were drawn up with dignified Indian chieftains. The location is now occupied by the Crystal Laundry.

First Post Office Shown

The first post office in Cumberland, built in 1807 a rough building with mortar chinked between the logs, is a far cry from the neat post office building of Cumberland today.

Other interesting homes featured includes the striking O. C. Gephart residence; the Merten's and McKaig property that formerly stood on the site of the YMCA; the sprawling Rawlings home built in 1798; Rose Hill, built by Captain David Lynn in 1800; Paw's Tavern, built by the same captain; and a number of former office and business buildings.

Course in Braille Offered to Blind

Local Lions Club Offers Instruction

A course in Braille, the raised letter alphabet that enables the blind to read by touch, will be offered in Cumberland by the Lions Club, it was announced yesterday.

The Lions have secured a six-week course which is handled by mail and will be open to anyone interested in learning the system. It is a part of a nation-wide project sponsored by that organization.

Dr. Leslie E. Daugherty and Ross E. Powell, of the Cumberland Lions club, are in charge of registration. The presentation of the course marks another stride by the Lions in their efforts to aid the blind; a program they have followed since the club was organized.

According to experts, it is no great task to learn Braille. For a number of years, a group of philanthropic Cumberland women have published various books in Braille at regular intervals.

The use of the Braille system has developed so rapidly that a number of publications are published in that medium at the present time.

Boy Falls Off Wall, But Fares Better Than Humpty Dumpty

John Alburts, 14-year-old Allegany High School student, was treated at Allegany hospital last night about 9 o'clock for a sprained right wrist received when he fell from a low wall while playing near Allegany Inn.

The boy was released from the hospital after his wrist and arm were bandaged. He is expected to return there today to have his arm x-rayed to determine the extent of his injuries.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Alburts, 316 Cecelia street.

Petitions Spring Up After Committee Action

Petitions backing Fred Puderbaugh for the state game and inland fish commission appointment, appeared yesterday following the action of the Democratic State Central Committee in recommending Fulcher P. Smith for the post.

The petitions, one of which was circulated by Frederick C. Dreyer, county treasurer, urge the appointment of Puderbaugh, former magistrate in the Peoples Court. The petitions were circulated widely in Cumberland yesterday and will be sent to Gov. O'Connor.

Union Street Pupils Entertain P.-T. A.

More than 120 students took part in the spring program presented at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting Monday at Union street school.

Included on the program were two selections by the first grade rhythm band, a dramatization by grade three, rhythm games by grade two, a dramatization by grade four, choral readings by grades five and six, and selections by the glee club.

Junior Volunteers Aid Three Charities
Officers of the Junior Volunteer Service Corps announce that the entire proceeds of its last public entertainment, "The Galettes of 1883," amounting to $932.24 have been apportioned among three charities and paid over to them. These are the Associated Charities, the Red Cross, and the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Potomac Park Revival

Revival meetings will begin at the Potomac Park Community church Monday at 7:30 p. m. and will be held every night except Saturday. The evangelist will be the Rev. George E. Baughman, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church.

Cumberland Gets Most of Blame For Pollution

Health Engineer Tells Meeting Much Needs To Be Done

A. M. Tawney, of Fort Mifflin, was elected president yesterday of the Maryland-Delaware Water Sewerage Association which opened its annual conference with representatives of five states and District of Columbia registered.

Others named for officers of the next year were G. E. H. H. of Washington, first vice president; J. M. Jester, of Hyattsville, second vice president; A. W. of Baltimore, secretary-treasurer; Clark Gardner, of Salisbury, year membership on the executive committee; and R. J. Stevens, Edgewood, Md., two-year membership of the executive committee filling Jester's incomplete term.

Addresses by George L. Hall, chief engineer of the Maryland State Department of Health, Commissioner William J. Edwards of Cumberland, featured yesterday opening session which was called to order by President C. J. Bruce, night, 94 registered delegates, a number of guests including Cumberland's City Council members were present at a banquet at Port Cumberland hotel.

Conference Continues
Today, the conference will resume its discussion of municipal and sewerage problems, what about them, and how to protect, improve municipal water systems. President-Elect Tawney will preside.

In his paper presented yesterday on stream pollution problems in Potomac basin, Mr. Hall admitted that rapid progress had been made in the control of contaminating factors, but added that much more to be done, especially in Allegheny and Garrett counties.

In 1929, seventy-three per cent of the population in the Maryland basin were served by sanitary sewers, compared to 96.1 per cent at the present time, an increase of 22.8 per cent he said.

"Today, the principle source of sewage pollution are at Cumberland and in the Washington Suburban Sanitary District," the engineer stated.

Concerned Over Cumberland
Although the condition in Cumberland has been somewhat improved by the construction of accepting sewers, the situation in Allegheny county in general is of some concern to the Health department, Mr. Hall declared.

While the effort to have a bill passed by the Legislature to establish a satisfactory county sewerage system failed to lack of interest, the Legislature did pass a resolution authorizing a committee to investigate existing sanitary facilities in the county, he stated.

This committee, which will report to the county commission and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, is to recommend correction of conditions that "deemed detrimental to health, safety, comfort, and convenience," Mr. Hall stated.

The engineer pointed out each year 75.5 million pounds of acid from some 406 bituminous coal mines in Allegheny and Garrett counties eventually reach the Potomac.

Mine Sealing Unsuccessful
When an effort to correct condition was made, engineers found that they were unable to up most of the unused mines. All the mines comprise a knit webwork, with closure of the ventilation of the mines still in use, the speaker stated.

"The major problem in the pollution of the Potomac is the Branch, where domestic and industrial wastes and acid drainage abandoned coal mines get in river," Mr. Hall said.

Commissioner Edwards introduced the members to the City of Cumberland in his address, which with the progress the city had in the last forty years.

He related how residents drank unfiltered water from Potomac and "got typhoid every summer" until the miller dollar Evists Creek Dam eradicated the deadly typhoid.

Praises Cumberland
In his talk, which he termed "my song of Cumberland," the missionary touched on most of major civic improvements with the efficiency of the municipal government, and the high morale of some 42,000 inhabitants.
